SUMMARY.

An Austrian submarine torpedoed the French cruiser Leon Gambetta in the Adriatic. Most of the crew perished.

Rear Admiral Senes went down with his ship. An Italian patrolling flotilla rescued 136 of the crew.

The submarine was protected by a German destroyer from Cattaro, which also fired on the Leon Gambetta.

Sir John French reports that the German attack at Ypres has been definitely stopped.

A small bridge-head at Steenstrate still remains to be dealt with.

The situation required the delivery of British and French counter-attacks north of the Ypres salient.

The Germans have suffered severe loss, over 500 dead being counted at a single point on the Yser Canal.

In the vicinity of Ypres the German losses are said to be in a ratio of 20 to 1 of the Allies.

Belgians and French are attacking the bridge-head from the north of Steenstrate, the British attacking from the other side.

On Monday night the Germans attempted to repeat Saturday's manoeuvre with poisonous gases.

The Belgians were warned, however, and took the necessary precautions.

When the Germans confidently advanced in compact masses the Belgian machine guns mowed them down.

Despite the Red Cross flag the Germans bombarded an infirmary at Popesinghe, and three nuns were killed.

There is a wholesale movement of German troops in Belgium, some towards the Yser and some eastwards.

Territorials fought with great gallantry, brilliantly assisting at the capture of Saint Julien.

Saint Julien was, however, found to be too far advanced, and the line was remodelled nearer to Ypres.

The French gained a kilometre on the Les Eparges-St. Remy road, inflicting severe losses and destroying a German battery.

French airmen ignited an ammunition store at Chaubley and a dirigible shed at Friedrichshafen.

They also brought down and destroyed four German aeroplanes. One French machine was lost.

According to the "Daily Chronicle," the Germans lost 60,000 men at Sedan and 40,000 at Longwy.

At Longwy the Crown Prince suffered a nervous breakdown, and was rescued by sacrificing large numbers of men.

His military exploits are a standing joke, as he spent most of his time in dissipation at Luxembourg.

The War Office announces that, despite opposition, the Allies have established themselves on the Gallipoli peninsula.

They have beaten off the attacks of the Turks, and are now steadily advancing.

A Petrograd communique says the enemy are intensely active on the Upper Niemen, and west of the Niemen.

The Rockefeller Commission reports that there are 30,000 case of typhoid in Servia.

The whole nation is rapidly being enveloped. Conditions are a menace to the health of the entire globe.

Three hundred thousand persons are destitute. The situation is wholly beyond the Government's control.

Japan has informed China that she will consider the retrocession of Kiao-Chao when her demands are accepted.

On the other hand, however, Tsing-Tao will be a treaty port, with a large Japanese settlement.

Sir Ronald Munro Ferguson was congratulated by the Imperial Government on the Australian troops' behaviour in Turkey.

Mr. Fisher stated yesterday that he did not yet know which troops had gone forward to the Dardanelles.

The Federal Government will continue to pay separation allowances to wives and families of soldiers on active service.

Hitherto it had been paid only up to the time that the soldiers left Australia.

The Defence Bill was finally passed in the Senate, and transmitted to the House of Representatives.

Mr. Fisher intends to move that the question of extending the Lithgow factory be referred to a Public Works Committee.

Mr. Bruce Smith, in the House of Representatives, asked whether non-unionist clerks were employed in the Defence Department.

Mr. Jensen replied that all would-be clerks in the department were instructed that they must belong to a union.

He added that 70 per cent. of the soldiers who had gone to the war were unionists.

The new Minister for Public Health, Mr. Black, yesterday said he intended to develop the bush nursing scheme.

He is in favour of having central district hospitals, so that patients could receive the best possible treatment.

The system of subsidising private doctors in outlying districts would also be persevered with.

Mr. Hall stated yesterday that, in view of scarcity, chaff exports should be discouraged in every possible way.

If any firms in the State disregarded the Government's wishes he undertook to seize their stocks under the Control Act.

Apparently about 70,000 tons of hay and chaff would be required to carry through until the new season in October.

A discussion took place at the Labour Council regarding the scope of the Necessary Commodities Commission last evening.

It was urged that the powers of the Commissioners be enlarged, and the commission made a permanent institution.

The Commissioners should also have power to enforce their decisions. It was decided to approach the Government.

Western Australian traders are to be called on to supply returns showing stocks of hay, chaff, and straw held.

The Control of Trade Commission desires to ascertain the actual position of the State in fodder supplies.

A further conference was held yesterday afternoon regarding the establishment of a national war invention bureau.

It was decided to cable to Sir George Reid to ask for the concurrence of the British Government.

A patriotic demonstration took place in front of Parliament Buildings, at Wellington, New Zealand.

The occasion was the receipt of a congratulatory cable from the Imperial Government regarding the Dominion troops in Turkey.

A moderate amount of business was done on the Sydney Stock Exchange yesterday at slightly easier prices.

Owing to the uncertainty of the news about the war a feeling of uneasiness still pervaded mining circles.

Speculators appeared to be disinclined to operate until news of a more reassuring nature was received.

There was a good demand for river poultry yesterday, and prices were firmer. Egg prices were unchanged.

In the forage and grain section there was very little business passing, and prices remained unaltered.

Two unassociated firms offered catalogues at the Sydney Wool Exchange yesterday. Competition was only moderately keen.

Buyers were in full attendance, and a total of 9478 bales was offered at auction. Medium prices were obtained.

At Homebush the sheep market opened to brisk competition for good to prime quality at Monday's best rulings.

Lambs were moderately supplied, and in strong demand for good to prime sorts, rates being very firm.

For better qualities of cattle, whose supplies were well within the demand, the demand was good and values firm.

There was very active demand for galvanised iron, in consequence of the repeated rises in the price of spelter.

Forecast:—Excepting for a shower or two on the South Coast, fine and cool generally, with southerly winds; more frosts and fogs.

TWO WEEKS IN SAN FRANCISCO.

THE PANAMA-PACIFIC EXPOSITION
is now open. Forty-one Nations represented at the Exposition emphasise its International Character. It is the most colossal of Expositions the world has ever seen; and its interest to the man of business and to the tourist is something that may not be duplicated for many years. Like Niagara Falls, this great Exposition, which has taken years to prepare, cannot be adequately described, but we have literature on its wonders which will be sent to you on application.

SEVEN WEEKS IN ALL.
Approximately from Sydney to San Francisco and back occupies 7 weeks—5 at sea, 2 on shore. In these 2 weeks you can see the Exposition, the Yosemite Valley, the Grand Canyon, Rocky Mtns., etc. No other line has so fast a time-table; but our return tickets are interchangeable with the other trans-Pacific Companies. Our route is via Honolulu going; Honolulu and Samoa returning.

HATS FOR WINTER WEAR

—POPULAR SOFT AND HARD FELTS.

It is now time to change over from the Straw Boater and Panama to the comfortable Soft Felts, and distinctive Bowlers.

Our shipments of Winter styles continue to arrive from noted British manufacturers, who produce distinctive shapes.

These manufacturers are originators of styles, and the fact that we get their new designs first enables us to feature shapes that are not in general use for months after we introduce them.

We quote two seasonable styles:—

ROUGH FINISHED SOFT FELT

—Now wholly superseding the Velour, which was of Austrian origin. This distinctive British hat is a smart shape, with 2¼-inch adjustable brim. The crown is of medium height, band of contrasting shade, and bow at side or back.
New and effective tones of Nut Brown, Sage Green, and Light Slate.
A splendid winter hat,

12/6.

MODERN OFFICE FURNITURE.

The DISPLAY of OFFICE FURNITURE, embracing DESKS, TABLES, and OTHER EQUIPMENT, shown in the FURNITURE DEPARTMENT, is of MORE than PASSING interest to commercial men; the EXTENSIVE VARIETY makes it PARTICULARLY attractive.

A Feature is made of the NEW MODEL ROLL-TOP and FLAT-TOP DESKS. CHAPTER II.—Continued.

Owing to the hurry of the preparations this had not been placed with sufficient care, and a space had been left on the right of it, where the footpath was lower than elsewhere. There was just a chance—one in a thousand, perhaps—that the car might get through if the right wheels would take the footpath. Without a second's hesitation the chauffeur took the risk, and drove straight for the narrow way.

At the terrific speed the car was racing the wheels mounted the obstacle with a jerk, which all but threw the occupants out of their seats, and it tilted to such an angle that for a second it was running on the left wheels only. It looked impossible that it should avoid turning over; but just as the police jumped out from behind the lorry the car righted, and the dexterous hand at the wheel brought it back on to the road and dashed away into the mirk at fifty miles an hour before the chagrined police could recover sufficiently from their surprise to discharge their weapons.

The volley when it did come was harmless, and the notorious red car and its occupants were soon beyond any fear of pursuit.

"Bravo, Jean, magnificent," cried the man by the side of the chauffeur. "Keep going; I thought it was the finish of everything."

The same break-neck speed was maintained until they slowed down through Charenton, where they crossed the river and then turned to the right, quickening up again till they reached Villejuif, and again between there and Bourg, where they halted a little way short of the houses. The four men in the tonneau jumped out, whipped off the red sides and back of the car, changing its colour to a sober green, removed the false number plate, and with a quick "good-night" hurried away, leaving the chauffeur and the man by his side—the leader of the gang, known as "Papa Gaudin"—to continue the journey alone.

They ran through Bourg at a steady pace, and a few minutes brought them to Chatillon, where they pulled up at a little villa in the outskirts. The car was quickly garaged, and the gear which had cut the rope was removed and packed away with the red plates in a cunningly contrived hiding-place.

As they entered the house, Gaudin's daughter met them. She was a remarkable looking girl, with a mass of red tawny hair clustered about her face, throwing into strong relief the clear pallor of her complexion, just as the black soft, clinging dress emphasised the graceful lines of the sinuous figure.

"Is all well?" she asked. "You are late." Her voice was a little unsteady with the anxiety of suspense which knitted the rather heavy brows over her big lustrous brown eyes. She put the question to her father, but her gaze was all for his companion.

"Of course, it's all well. What do you mean? Jean here has done splendidly. But it was a touch and go, eh Jean?" and the rapid interchange of looks between them was unnoticed by the younger man.

The girl took his hand and drew off his glove, pressed her lips to the fingers and held up her face for a caress. "You're not hurt, Jean?"

He turned with a questioning frown. "Why should I be hurt, Estelle?" His tone was somewhat brusque as he kissed her and put her aside to take off his heavy motor coat. "We're hungry," he added in much the same tone. She was hurt by his manner, and paused as if to reply, but changed her mind and led the way into the room where a meal was laid.

He sat down at once, and ate his meal in silence, taking no heed of the other's talk, and as soon as he had finished he rose and took a cigar from a box on the mantelpiece. The girl jumped up and struck a match for him.

"You are not well to-night, Jean," she said with a smile of solicitude.

"Yes I am. Don't fuss," he answered, throwing himself into an easy chair, and smoking slowly, his brows bent and his look abstracted.

Gaudin motioned to his daughter to leave him alone, but she would not.

"Why won't you speak to me?" she cried with a show of passion. "I've done nothing except eat out my heart in suspense as I waited for your coming. Jean, Jean, why won't you speak to me?"

His frown deepened as he looked up, and an oath slipped from him.

"I'd rather you swore at me than said nothing," she exclaimed bitterly.

He shrugged his shoulders, but his face brightened a little directly afterwards and he smiled and drew her to him and kissed her.

With a gesture of anger she wrenched herself away. "There's no love in a kiss of that sort. For three days you've scarcely spoken to me, and given me nothing but sour looks and anger to live on."

"Don't worry him, girl," put in her father sharply.

Jean turned to Gaudin with a gesture of protest, and then back to her. "I'm sorry, Estelle; but I'm only a brute, and a moody brute at the best. I didn't mean anything, but you must take me as I am."

This was more than enough to pacify her, and she threw her arms about him and kissed him passionately. He let her have her way, but there was no answering caress in either word or look; and when she drew away, he fell back into his former moody attitude, and sat smoking and staring into vacancy.

He was a young, powerfully-built man, with strong, irregular features; he had closely cut whiskers and a short beard, and fair hair almost as short as his beard. His eyes were blue but dull, and with little expression and intelligence, and his actions were slow and heavy in keeping with his general appearance.

After a time he rose and left the room, paying no heed to the girl's quick question whether she could anything for him.

As the door closed behind him, she stamped her foot and burst into tears.

"What's the good of that?" asked her father, gruffly. He had a hard face, and keen piercing eyes, and the manner of a man accustomed to force his will on others.

"Haven't I reason to be angry? Hasn't he changed toward me almost out of knowledge in the last few days? And why? Didn't I nurse him back to life? Didn't Dr. Cachot say that but for me he would have died? Who has a right to him if I haven't? Hasn't he promised to marry me? Didn't he put this ring, his own, on my finger and tell me again and again that he cared for me? Doesn't he know that I worship the very ground he walks on?" she cried passionately.

Gaudin gave a shrug of impatience. He had very little sympathy for any sort of emotion. "Well, I suppose he'll keep his word," he growled.

"A pretty way he has of showing it, hasn't he? A few words forced with an effort, a kiss or two given as a sort of toll, with neither warmth nor meaning in them, like a careless pat for a troublesome dog. And his looks! I declare to heaven I'd rather he struck me than look at me as I've caught him looking a dozen times these last three days."

"He may be coming to himself—beginning to remember. Cachot said he would."

This appeared to spur her anger to white heat, and she winced as if he had struck her. "If that's it, there'll be a heavy reckoning. If it means that he won't have anything to do with me, I won't stand that, father. I swear I won't. If he tries to go back on his word, the police shall know who it is that drives the red car."

Gaudin sprang to his feet with a heavy oath. "Stop that, my girl," he cried fiercely, "you're mad."

"Mad or sane, I won't let him be false to me. He's pledged, and he shall keep his pledge or——"

Gaudin seized her roughly by the arm and shook her. "Stop that, I say," he cried threateningly. "Stop this rot, and listen to me. There's trouble, and damned serious trouble, too. The police were on us to-night, and we were all but trapped at Vincennes. That means that some one gave us away, and I suspect Menier—he's jealous of Jean Colonne. But I'll deal with him. We don't know what he's told, but this place may be raided at any moment, so we must leave here and get back to the flat in the Rue de Bavisson. What's more, you've been too long away from the Halls fooling your time away here, so I've got you an engagement at the Folies Travaires."

"Why?"

"Because I tell you," was the blunt stern reply. "Aren't I supposed to be a cripple living on what you earn? And how in hell are you to earn anything if you're not dancing?"

"And Jean?"

"Leave things to me. What's come to you, girl? He can't go to the flat and find out what you do, and your stage name, and all the rest of it. Dull and half-witted as he is, he'd smell a rat."

"But I won't part from him—I swear that. I can't live without him."

He frowned with an impatient toss of his head. "You can see him every day for that matter; I'll arrange that. You can meet at our other rooms in the Rue Claud, near the Lyons station. He can take you there to-morrow morning. But mind, not a word to him about anything. And now the thing's settled."

LAW REPORT.

HIGH COURT.

(Before the Chief Justice, Sir Samuel Griffith, Mr. Justice Isaacs, Mr. Justice Duffy, and Mr. Justice Rich.)

INTERESTING TRADE MARKS JUDGMENT.

Henry Clay and Bock and Co. v S. J. Eddy.

The reserved judgment of the Court was given in the case, in which Henry Clay and Bock and Co., Ltd., appealed against a decision of Mr. Justice Harvey, sitting in Equity jurisdiction, on April 15, 1914.

Plaintiff company declared that they carried on the manufacture of cigars at Havana, Cuba. The company claimed to be the proprietor of a trade mark with a certain device. Plaintiff alleged defendant, who was a tobacconist in Sydney, was selling cigars, not of plaintiff company's manufacture, got up in boxes which were alleged to be colourable imitations of plaintiff company's boxes. Plaintiff company alleged that the public were being induced to believe that they were purchasing the company's cigars. His Honor in Equity was asked to restrain the continued sale by defendant of these cigars. His Honor decided against the company, with costs. The main ground of appeal to the High Court was that his Honor should have held that the device and general get-up of defendant's cigars were calculated to deceive, and amounted to an infringement of plaintiff company's trade mark.

The Chief Justice said the simplest form of infringement was, of course, an exact copy. The infringement complained of in this case was what was commonly and conveniently called a "colourable imitation," by which his Honor understood the taking of so much of the trade mark as was likely to be mistaken for the whole. The standard of comparison included the whole get-up of the plaintiff's goods. A trade mark was used to distinguish the goods of the owner of it from those of other persons, and may therefore become important as a step or means in the proof of deception by passing off. But a registered trade mark was also an end in itself, and an action would lie for a colourable imitation of it, without proof of anything more. If the contrary view were correct, the only advantage acquired by registration of a trade mark under the New South Wales Act was to prove the registered owner's right to use the mark himself, without any right to complain of a colourable imitation of it by other persons, even though amounting to a deliberate piracy, unless by doing so they, in fact, passed off their goods as his. His Honor said that, having compared the two devices in question by the test of his own eyesight, he had no difficulty in finding as a fact that the defendant's device bore such a resemblance to the plaintiff's registered mark as to be calculated to induce incautious purchasers to think it is the plaintiff's mark. The learned Judge in the lower Court had found that it was the word "Bock" which denoted the plaintiff company's goods, and that the cigars were not bought on the faith of the reproduction of the trademark of an eagle, and also that a person intending to buy a Bock cigar would not be likely to accept a Nelfor in mistake. That finding, said his Honor the Chief Justice, was of great importance as regarded the complaint of passing off, but was, for the reasons stated, irrelevant to the question of infringement of the registered trademark. The finding could only be relevant on the assumption that if the name of the owner of a registered trademark had become so well known that his goods were sold on the faith of his name, without regard to his mark, the mark became negligible, and might be pirated with impunity. "I cannot think that this is the law, either in New South Wales or in England," concluded his Honor. "I am therefore of opinion that the appeal should be allowed, as far as regards the complaint of infringement. I am unable to find any ground, with regard to the complaint of passing off, that would justify us in overruling the finding of the learned Judge on the question of fact."

Mr. Justice Isaacs said that, judged by the standard of identity, on which the eye was the sole test, the defendant's trademark could not be said to be a copy of or identical with that of the plaintiff's. Infringement must be of the trademark as a whole. The words on plaintiff's mark indicate the manufacturers, and their importance could not be ignored. Not only were those words omitted on defendant's device, but their place was supplied by other and quite different words. Those differences alone were sufficient to destroy identity. Defendant's (Eddy's) mark not only contained nothing approaching the name "Bock," but did contain a negation of the cigars being Bock's. Notwithstanding the similarity of the eagle and the crown, the resemblance of impression did not exist. There was, therefore, no infringement of the trade mark. His Honor also held that the complaint of passing off was not substantiated. He thought the appeal should be dismissed.

Mr. Justice Duffy read the judgment of himself, and Mr. Justice Rich. Their Honors said the law of trade mark was an off-shoot of the law of passing-off, which became clearly recognised both at law and in equity, in the early part of the nineteenth century. Unless the use complained of was likely to lead to the deception of purchasers there was no infringement. Whilst there was an undoubted resemblance between the marks, their Honors were of opinion that appellants had failed to make out a case of probability of deception. Their Honors also held that the appeal failed as regards the complaint of passing off.

By majority, therefore, the Chief Justice dissenting, the appeal was dismissed with costs.

Mr. Knox, K.C., and Mr. Maughan, instructed by Messrs. Minter, Simpson, and Co., appeared for the appellant company, and Mr. Leverrier, K.C., and Mr. Jordan, instructed by Messrs. McDonell and Moffitt, for the respondent, Eddy.

(Before Sir Samuel Griffith, C.J., Mr. Justice Isaacs, and Mr. Justice Duffy.)

INCOME TAX DISPUTE.

RESERVED JUDGMENT DELIVERED.

The reserved judgment of the Court was delivered in the case in which the New South Wales Commissioners of Taxation appealed against the majority judgment of the State Full Court (Mr. Justice Pring, Mr. Justice Gordon, and Mr. Justice Ferguson), on March 19, 1915, which reversed a decision by District Court Judge Murray, sitting as a Court of Review, in the dispute between the Commissioners and the Sulphide Corporation, Ltd., Broken Hill, over the amount of income tax payable for the year 1913.

The Commissioners of Taxation appealed to the High Court to decide the question as to whether the sum of £61,125 was taxable income within the meaning of the Income Management Acts of 1912 and 1914.

The Chief Justice said it was not disputed that the sum of £63,000 was income. The question was whether it was income derived from a source in New South Wales. The point submitted for decision was whether the sum should be brought into account as income, subject to permitted deductions. Beyond all doubt the sum was received by reason of the contract of May 7, 1912. That contract was one made by the corporation for the purpose of, and in the course of its business of smelting ores and selling the product, which business was, except as regards the selling, carried on in New South Wales. His Honor said without attempting any exhaustive definition, he was of opinion that when a person or company carried on in the State of New South Wales the business of dealing with natural products for the purpose of preparing them for use, or extracting from them other products, and then disposing of the ultimate product by way of sale, any income arising from contracts entered into in the ordinary course of that business for disposing of those products, wherever the contracts themselves were made, had its source, in part, at least, in the business undertaking. Taking the view that the money was paid as liquidated damages, under the second contract, his Honor said that damages received as compensation for non-performance of a business contract stood on the same footing as the profits, for the loss of which the damages were paid. His Honor held that the sum of £63,000 was derived, mainly, if not altogether, from a source in this State, and must be brought into account as income so derived. If, he said, the corporation could establish a case for apportioning it, by attributing any part of it to a source in England, where the corporation was registered, or in Victoria, where it carried on some business operations, the Commissioners would no doubt give effect to the representations.

Mr. Justice Isaacs, in a separate judgment, in which he reviewed many previous cases, said it was impossible to exclude the £63,000 entirely from taxation. It was, his Honor thought, equally impossible to include the whole of the sum, without apportionment of some kind, as between New South Wales and places outside New South Wales, where the business was carried on, subject to all proper deductions.

Mr. Justice Duffy, in a separate judgment, concurred.

The appeal was therefore allowed, the order appealed from discharged, with costs of the Supreme Court and High Court hearings against the respondent corporation.

Dr. Brissenden, instructed by Mr. J. V. Tillett, Crown solicitor, represented the appellant Commissioners of Taxation. Mr. Langer Owen, K.C., and Mr. Clive Teece, instructed by Messrs. Norton, Smith, and Co., represented the Sulphide Corporation, Ltd.

(Before Mr. Justice Rich.)

LAND RESUMPTION CLAIM.

COMPENSATION FIXED.

Sitting in the original jurisdiction of the High Court his Honor concluded the hearing of the application by the Minister for Home Affairs to fix the amount of compensation for land acquired by resumption for Federal territory purposes. The matter in dispute was a claim by David Perrot, of Uriarra, Queanbeyan. The department resumed 641½ acres of claimant's land. A dispute arose over the amount of compensation payable, the department offering £610 odd for the land and improvements, whilst the owner claimed nearly twice as much.

Delivering judgment, his Honor said the claimant and his witnesses valued the land at £2 10s per acre, making a total value of £1602. On the other hand, expert witnesses, called for the Commonwealth, valued it at £809 and £612 respectively. These latter estimates, said his Honor, were borne out by the number of stock run by the claimant, and the number of stock returned by him under the Act. They were also supported by the fact that in 1905 the claimant sought a reappraisement of the land, and asked that the value of the C.P. land, unimproved, be set down at 11/8, and of the C.L. land at 8/4 per acre. That would make the total value of land, unimproved, £293 odd, and added to the value of the improvements, £647, would make a total of £950. Basing his finding on the expert evidence called his Honor determined the compensation at £950, from which there is to be deducted £257 due to the Crown on the land, making the net amount of compensation £693.

No order was made as to costs.

Mr. Campbell, K.C., and Mr. Pike, instructed by the Commonwealth Crown Solicitor, appeared for the Minister; and Mr. Shand, K.C., and Mr. Monaghan, instructed by Mr. Crichton Smith, for the claimant Perrot.

SUPREME COURT.

BANCO COURT.

(Before Mr. Justice Sly and a jury of four.)

EJECTMENT ACTIONS.

Garnet v Keane.

Mr. H. E. Manning, instructed by Messrs. Ellison Rich, and Son, appeared for the plaintiff. The defendant did not appear. This was an action of ejectment brought by John Garnet, of Norton-street, Leichhardt, against Patrick Keane, to recover possession of 92 acres of land at Bankstown.

Verdict for plaintiff was given.

Fitz Townsend v Thompson.

Mr. James, instructed by Mr. J. J. Jagelman, appeared for the plaintiff. Defendant, Stanley Thompson, appeared in person. The other defendant, Andrew Thompson, did not appear. This was an action of ejectment brought by John Fitz Townsend against defendants to recover possession of 106 acres of land at Dapto.

Verdict for plaintiff.

ACTION FOR BALANCE OF ACCOUNT.

Higgens and another v Brown.

Mr. Mocatta, instructed by Messrs. Pigott and Stinson (agents for Messrs. Fitzgerald and McIntyre, of Muswellbrook), appeared for the plaintiffs; and Mr. Curtis, instructed by Mr. Edgar H. Cohen, of Muswellbrook, for the defendant. This was an action brought by Edward Higgens and Walter Valentine Parkinson, stock and station agents, of Muswellbrook, trading as Edward Higgens, Parkinson, and Co., against Lenworth Brown, grazier, to recover the sum of £104 2s 9d, balance of account claimed by plaintiffs to be due to them. As part of the claim was on a promissory note, Mr. Curtis explained defendants' case to the jury, and said that his client had had dealings with plaintiffs for years, and he admitted that on July 13, 1914, defendant owed the plaintiffs £160 8s 3d, and at that time judgment had been recovered against him by another creditor, as Parkinson knew; and when defendant saw him on the same day, Parkinson said that his firm had no security for their debt. Defendant replied that the only property he had consisted of 11 horses, and he offered to hand them over to plaintiffs absolutely, to clear off his debt. Parkinson consented, and an agreement was drawn up by which plaintiffs agreed to take the horses in full satisfaction of the balance claimed by them. It was also agreed that until an opportunity offered for selling them, the defendant was to keep the horses at agistment at the expense of the plaintiffs. Defendant subsequently sold one of the horses and handed the proceeds to plaintiffs, who, later on, informed him that they had sold the others for £56. He contended that they were worth £150 at the time, as among the animals there were one brood mare, several full bred horses, and some valuable ponies.

The plaintiff Parkinson, in his evidence, said it was absolutely untrue that the horses were taken in full satisfaction of defendant's liability. As a matter of fact, witness agreed to sell the horses, which were of a nondescript character, on behalf of the defendant, and a sale note was made out. They were advertised and sold in October on behalf of Brown, who was present at the auction sale; and witness heard nothing about defendant's assertion until some time afterwards. After the sale he said to defendant that the proceeds would reduce his indebtedness a good deal, and he subsequently sent him account sales.

The jury returned a verdict for plaintiffs in the full amount claimed.

MALLEN v MALLEN.

Mr. R. W. Fraser appeared for the petitioner, James Mallen, who sued for a divorce from his wife, Nellie Sophia Mallen (formerly Pointer), on the ground of her misconduct with Frank Mawson. He, accordingly, granted a decree nisi against respondent, making it returnable in six months.

(Before Mr. Justice Street.)

PETERSEN v PETERSEN.

The hearing of this suit, in which Kristian Martin Petersen sued for the dissolution of his marriage with Grace Petersen (formerly Pomery), on the alleged ground of misconduct with one Hans Jansen, was resumed and concluded. Petitioner amended his petition by charging respondent with misconduct with some person unknown, and his Honor dismissed the petition as against the co-respondent, but granted a decree nisi on the amended petition against respondent, making it returnable in six months.

TUFNELL v TUFNELL.

Mr. Davidson, instructed by Mr. Claude Manning, appeared for the petitioner, Frank Tufnell, who asked for a decree against his wife, Helene Gwynne Tufnell (formerly Desparde) for the restitution of conjugal rights. The marriage took place in September, 1905, at the Church of the New Thought, Roslyn-street, Darlinghurst. His Honor granted a decree, ordering respondent to return to her husband in 21 days after service of notice.

REICHERT v REICHERT.

His Honor, after hearing the case for petitioner, granted a decree nisi, returnable in six months.

CREDITORS' PETITION.

The Australian Bank of Commerce, Limited v Alban Shannon, of the Tram Terminus, Undercliffe, near Sydney, lately residing at Hay-street, Lower Randwick, racehorse-trainer. Petition to be heard on May 7.

HEARING OF CREDITOR'S PETITION.

David John Rand v Arthur Bryant Triggs. Mr. R. H. L. Innes, instructed by Mr. E. M. Stephens, agent for Mr. C. A. Vaughan, of Cootamundra, appeared for the petitioning creditor in an application for the sequestration of the estate of the respondent; Mr. Adrian Knox, K.C., and Dr. Brissenden, instructed by Messrs. Minter, Simpson, and Co., appeared for the respondent and the trustee of his assigned estate to oppose the application.

The Registrar said he was of opinion that the petition should be dismissed, and where the act of bankruptcy was committed subsequently to the execution of a deed of assignment for the benefit of creditors a sequestration should not be made if the creditor petitioning did not represent at least one-fifth in value of all the creditors. To make a sequestration order under such circumstances would be to give a merely illusory protection. Section 4 (sub-section 10) of the Act, to the Registrar's mind, contemplated an effective protection.

VOLUNTARY SEQUESTRATION.

Mortimer Patrick Kielly, engineer, of 34 Pearl-street, Newtown, and carried on business at the rear of 44 and 48 George-street, West Sydney. Mr. C. F. W. Lloyd, official assignee.

CENTRAL CRIMINAL COURT.

(Before Mr. Acting Justice Docker and juries.)

Mr. Herbert Harris, Crown Prosecutor.

ALTERED HIS PLEA.

Albert Chapman, aged 27, was arraigned on a charge of assaulting, in company, Charles William Black, at Grahame-street, Darlinghurst, on March 8, and robbing him of a watch and chain, a sovereign purse, and other articles. Chapman was defended by Mr. R. Abigail. When several witnesses had stated that they saw the crime committed, Chapman, on the advice of his attorney, stated that he would plead guilty to a charge of stealing from the person. The Crown accepted this plea, added a second count to the indictment, and the jury, by direction, returned a verdict of guilty. Accordingly Chapman was remanded for sentence.

COUNTERFEIT COINS.

Thomas Freestone, aged 25, and Albert Leslie Kelly, aged 25, were arraigned together on a charge of uttering a counterfeit coin, which purported to be a sovereign, to William Harrison, a barman at the Commodore Hotel, at North Sydney, on February 17. Both accused pleaded not guilty, and were defended by Mr. W. C. Moseley. A statement given to the police by Kelly after his arrest was tendered as evidence. In that statement, Kelly admitted having bought six similar coins from a man in Park-street for £2. The defence set up at the trial was that the statement referred to was given to the police while Kelly was under the influence of liquor; that the coin tendered to Harrison was obtained by the accused Kelly on the racecourse, and that when he gave it to Freestone to cash he had no idea that it was not genuine.

The jury returned a verdict of guilty against both accused, who were remanded for sentence.

DISTRICT COURT.

(Before Judge Murray.)

ALLEGED LOSS OF GOODS.

McCauley and others v Davis.

Judgment was delivered in the case in which Frederick James McCauley, George Lindsay Corner, and Ernest Neil McGruer, trading as the "Sydney Electrical Engineering Company," of Wynyard-street, Sydney, claimed £21 from J. B. Davis, of 105A Clarence-street, Sydney, for the alleged loss and detention of certain goods.

The defence was that the whole of the goods that had been given to the defendant were delivered to plaintiffs.

His Honor found a verdict for the plaintiffs for £21, the amount to be reduced to £1 if the tin of brasses in question were returned to them within 24 hours.

Mr. Pickburn, instructed by Messrs. A. J. Taylor and Greenwell, appeared for the plaintiffs; and Mr. Murray Prior, instructed by Messrs. Mackenzie and Mackenzie, for the defendant.

SALE OF A DOLL'S POINT PROPERTY.

Barnes v Saunders.

Judgment was delivered in respect of the action, in which Albert James Barnes, of 11 Ernest-street, North Sydney, estate agent, who claimed the sum of £160 19s 9d from Matilda Saunders, married woman, of Scarborough House, Doll's Point, Sandringham, alleged to be the amount of commission (£150) and expenses and costs due to plaintiff by the defendant in connection with the sale of Scarborough House.

The defendant paid 18s 3d into court in respect of her share of the cost of the hire of a motor car; and pleaded that plaintiff did not effect a sale to earn any commission, and that he had taken a cheque instead of cash by way of deposit, which cheque was dishonoured.

His Honor held that plaintiff was not entitled to any commission, and said that as the defendant had paid certain money into court, there would be a verdict for the plaintiff for the amount so paid; the defendant to have her costs since the date of payment in; judgment to be entered for the defendant.

Mr. Armstrong, instructed by Mr. P. K. White, appeared for the plaintiff, and Mr. Alec. Thomson, instructed by Mr. J. B. Moffatt, for the defendant.

PRICE OF FORAGE.

The Necessary Commodities Commission, having recommended that certain prices be fixed for chaff and hay, presumably the Government will adopt the recommendation On the whole, such action will be welcomed probably by the majority concerned. Naturally, lucerne growers—to whom drought elsewhere means a good year—who had visions of famine prices for their produce, and the few wheat and oaten hay growers that still hold supplies for sale, will regret such a development. But the prices fixed mean a profitable return to growers, one considerably above normal years, yet, at the same time, probably not as high as the exigencies of a bad drought cause. It may be, however, that the action recommended by the commission is too belated to do much good. In fixing arbitrary prices by law a chain of circumstances is created that is far-reaching, and it is very difficult to avoid rank injustice, and seemingly impossible to secure a really equitable position. When it became apparent that the Government intended fixing the price of wheat, we pointed out that if that was done the price of fodder should certainly be fixed also, in common fairness to the wheat-grower. The position then, to our mind, was very plain. The wheat crop looked bad, not only in this State, but in Victoria and South Australia, from where we secure, in normal years, a large quantity of fodder. Failure of the wheat crop meant failure (to a very great extent) of the hay crop and a scarcity of chaff. It was obvious that feed was going to be very dear, would be, even if the season continued normal. It was equally certain that the farmer whose wheat crop had failed would be short of feed in the great majority of instances. Yet, to get the crop in this year he had to feed his horses. The natural accompaniment to fixing the price of wheat should have been fixing the price of oaten and wheaten hay and chaff at least, that being the fodder commonly used in the wheat belt. But this was not done, and consequently for months past consumers have been paying famine prices for horsefeed. The Department of Agriculture has also had to pay a stiff price for the chaff it bought to distribute amongst necessitous farmers. About a month ago the Assistant Minister for Agriculture told a country audience that the Sussex-street merchants, when he wanted to purchase a large quantity of chaff a few days before, had asked £9 a ton. When he threatened to take them before the Necessary Foods Commission, they had sold the Government 4000 tons of chaff at £7 10s per ton. To complete this illuminative incident, it might be noted that at the time the price of wheat was fixed the market quotation in Sydney for oaten chaff was £5 5s to £5 15s per ton.

Those who cherish the belief that the speculator is going to be affected seriously by the fixing of the price of forage at this stage are mistaken, in our opinion. He has had a run for six months, and has probably done remarkably well in return for taking the risk of the drought breaking. Even those who hold supplies will lose nothing probably at the price recommended, £8 10s per ton, for chaff in Sydney. There is also an idea in some quarters that the action now proposed plays into the hands of Sussex-street, inasmuch as supplies were getting short, and merchants must pay high prices. But the consumer, in any case, has to pay in the end, so that fact should not unduly worry the middleman. The consumer will benefit by the fixing of prices, but in the case of wheat farmers, who have to buy feed, they have probably laid in supplies by this, and therefore may not benefit. Stockowners who have to still hand-feed will reap an advantage providing they can obtain supplies. Carriers and other large users of fodder in the city will profit substantially, and, it is to be hoped, will not forget to allow for that in charging their customers. Apart from what supplies are in merchants and speculators' hands, any future service to consumers, if the Government fixes prices as recommended, will be at the expense of the producer, especially the lucerne grower, whose regular business is growing fodder. To sum up: Speculators have had a free hand for months, and must have made large profits; the wheat growers it was in the interests of the community to protect by providing fodder at reasonable rates to help them put in the next crop have not been protected, neither have stockowners who have been compelled to hand-feed for some time past; the main beneficiaries of action taken now, apparently, will be city consumers; and the lucerne grower will obtain less than he anticipated. It may be that necessitous farmers will benefit through the Department of Agriculture, which appears to have brought this matter before the commission, but, altogether, one is inclined to view the proposed action as coming too late in the day to be of real value. If the expedient of fixing prices had to be adopted, the price of forage should have been fixed months ago.

PRICE OF FORAGE.

Irrigationist writes, "The evidence given before the Necessary Commodities Commission relative to forage is disgusting to any man with a spark of fairplay and fair deal in his make up. If the commission takes drastic action, as it did with the wheat, and forces the farmer who does happen to hold stocks to sell to the thriftless, who greedily sold out for money in good years, and are left without fodder in this time of drought, it is to be hoped a larger measure of fair play will be considered. The carrier element is very active in this inquiry. The carrier is a noble patriot to his own cause. He invariably stocks up with forage when prices are low (one bought all my hay last year for 35s a ton), and when bad times arrive, and bring with them high prices of forage, up goes the price of carriage. In normal times carriage from my place to the rail is 8s per ton. Now it is 25s per ton, a rise of over 200 per cent., which means this to the carrier: Say chaff is £4 per ton in normal times, and he feeds 16 horses, they will eat about half a ton a week; therefore, in normal times it costs the carrier £2 a week for feed, now it costs him £5 a week for his team of 16. He can do five trips a week from my place, carrying six tons a trip, and earn from £10 to £12 a week at 8s per ton; he asks and gets £7 10s a trip, or over £35 a week, for the expenditure of little over double the old charge for feed. I am told city carriage has also risen sky high.

Nobody appears to care a hang how the farmer with forage to sell gets on at this inquiry. We hear a lot from the carriers, and Sussex-street, and from a class of cocky (mostly imported from South Australia) from up west; but we hear nothing in defence of the small irrigationist and the hard-working lucerne grower. He is the chopping-block for everybody, certainly of Sussex-street, the opulent carrier, and the lordly but spoon-fed wheat grower. I had been irrigating lucerne for some time for sheep feed, but when prices rose I sacrificed the sheep to make hay. Some of this has been cut into chaff. Our alleged working men demand high wages and high feeding to chaff lucerne. It cost me £2 6s 6d a ton to chaff it, and 14s per ton for bags, and this with 25s for carriage makes up £4 5s 6d which the irrigationist must pay out. A large lucerne farmer in my neighbourhood has since Christmas sold about 600 tons of hay to the Commonwealth Government at £4 15s a ton, and now, at the end of the season, he discovers that he has made the magnificent profit of 9s a ton off land which is valued at £35 an acre for taxation purposes. No more hay growing for him. He is going to make a sheep walk of his paddocks. Notwithstanding the high prices at present obtaining there is not a small farmer in my district, which the drought has not touched, who has a shilling to bless himself with, though a majority of them work from daylight till after dark. Yet we read of a master-carrier dying a little while back worth about a quarter of a million, or was it three-quarters of a million? And Sussex-street merchants are large owners of racehorses and motor cars. If the commission is determined, as alleged, to obliterate Sussex-street, it should do so without injuring the small irrigationists by fixing a higher price to the legitimate farmer for his stuff, which he has sweated to grow, than to the speculator, whose money enables him to build premises to store forage for a rise. But if carriers and other people using fodder rush to participate in the meal off the small man—as they surely will—at reduced prices, they should be compelled to lower their charges accordingly for carrying. It's a poor rule that will not work both ways. In any case, if the commission lowers the prices for the purpose of feeding starving farmers none but the said farmers should participate in the gorge, and great care should be taken to prevent the alleged starving farmers from selling the Government stuff in their local towns at advanced prices, as many of them have already done.

THE FRUIT INDUSTRY.

Mr. C. C. Tucker, vice-president Fruit-growers' Association of N.S.W., writes:—The following comparison shows that the fruit-grower, who employs more labour per acre of land than the ordinary farmer, and who is therefore one of the most valuable of the closer settlers on the land, is placed at a distinct disadvantage compared to both the dairy and poultry farmer:—

	Average Cost.	Duty.	Protective Tariff.
Bacon	1/ per lb.	4d per lb.	33⅓ p.c.
Cheese	9d per lb.	3d per lb.	33⅓ p.c.
Butter	1/ per lb.	3d per lb.	25 p.c.
Eggs	1/ per lb.	6d per lb.	50 p.c.
Fruit—
Apples	1/ per doz.	2/ per cental, equal to ⅙d per doz.,	6 p.c.
Lemons	1/ per doz.	⅛d per lb, equal to 1½d per doz.	12 p.c.

The vigneron receives a protection of over 100 p.c.

It was found that high protection was necessary for the farmer. Why not also for the fruit-grower? Practically freetrade has proved a failure for the fruit-grower, judging from the number of neglected orchards and struggling fruit-growers one sees everywhere. An extra £30 or £40 per annum in the net returns would save many fruit-growers from ultimate ruin. This in many instances would not amount to more than about 6d per case to the consumers of local fruits. It is only fair that the Government should also give sufficient protection to this most desirable section of the community. If retaliation was not experienced in the farming and wine industries it is not likely to be so with the fruit-growing industry.

THE CATTLE TICK.

OUTBREAK AT MULLUMBIMBY.

MULLUMBIMBY.—Following up the recent discovery of ticks at Mullumbimby, the tick staff have made a thorough inspection of cattle on adjoining farms, and to date seven farms have been found infested. Some cattle have been heavily infested. The places were all quarantined, and stringent measures are being taken against the pest spreading. Cattle and horses running on the road were found to be carrying ticks.

Farmers in the vicinity are holding a meeting to urge on the matter of building dips. It is generally surmised that ticks are all round this part. A gate will be erected on the road near the closest infested farm.

DISTRICT ITEMS.

BOMBALA.—The Rocky Hall Dairy Company manufactured 5306lb of butter during March. Suppliers received 11 9-16th pence per lb net. The working expenses were 1¼d per lb. Stockowners in Bombala and Delegate districts are having a good deal of trouble in securing winter feed. In the Bega district one man is asking £350 for a 500-acre paddock for six months.

CAPERTEE.—For the last few days the weather has been very unsettled. Heavy clouds, with occasional showers, accompanied by bleak winds have prevailed. Rabbit-trappers have commenced operations, and a supply of rabbits is now going forward to Rylstone Freezing Works. Foxes are increasing rapidly.

SINGLETON.—Although there has not been the usual rainfall this year, the district continues to cope with the pressure upon its pastures caused by the large influx of starving stock from less-favoured portions of the State. Messrs. H. York and Son report that 12,000 head of cattle consigned to them for agistment have arrived since the beginning of the year, principally from Riverina. During the same period 20,000 sheep have reached here from Moree, Barraba, and Riverina. The stock that are here have made a splendid recovery. The bulk of the cattle, which are stores, will eventually be sold here.

AUSTRALIAN PRODUCE ABROAD.

CHEESE.

LONDON, March 19.

The cheese market continues extremely firm on Government orders, and finest Canadian, white and coloured, are quoted 94s to 95s, with New Zealand at 93s to 94s. Naturally at this high level, general distributive trade is very quiet. A shipment of Australian cheese is now due per steamer Hurunui, and is expected to realise from 88s to 92s, ex wharf London, according to quality and size.

BACON.

Australian bacon, Cumberland-cut, has been done this week at 62s to 64s, with firm inquiry.

TALLOW.

Last week buyers showed no inclination to trade, whilst on the part of the sellers there was no pressure to sell. Prices meanwhile were with little or no change. At auctions 517 casks were offered, but only 171 sold, and prices were generally 6d easier. The Australasian shipments for February were 6856 tons, as compared with 7000 tons last year. This week fine sorts met with some inquiry at full prices, but ordinary grades were neglected. Quotations on c.i.f. terms for parcels afloat were nominally 6d lower at 37s 6d to 38s 6d for fair to good mixed, and 40s 6d to 42s for mutton; whilst for shipment there were no sellers owing to freight difficulties. At auction last Wednesday 780 casks of Australasian tallow were offered, and 110 casks sold at 6d to 9d per cwt decline. The present quotations for Australasian sorts are:—Mutton, fine 43s 6d, fair to good 40s to 42s 6d, common to middling 38s 6d to 39s, low and inferior 35s to 36s; beef, fine 43s to 45s, fair to good 39s 6d to 42s, common to middling 36s 6d to 38s 6d, low and inferior 34s to 35s; mixed, fair to good 39s 6d to 40s, common to middling 34s to 38s 6d.

MERINO PELTS.

The market for Australian merino pelts has continued quiet, but prices have not quotably lowered. Firsts are worth 15s to 17s per doz, and seconds and thirds 10s to 14s.

HAIR, HORNS, ETC.

Australian horsehair is now 1s 2d to 1s 9½d; cowtail, free 1s 2½d to 1s 4½d, and on skin 6½d to 10d per lb. Ox and cow horns range up to 38s per 100. In bones, round shanks are £12 to £13 7s 6d, and flat shanks £9 10s to £10 2s 6d per ton.

FUR.

Kangaroo skins are quoted from 2½d to 5s 6d per lb, and Australasian opossum skins 1s 6d to 16s, and Tasmanian opossum 3s 3d to 17s each.

HIDES AND LEATHER.

Private business in Australasian hides, salted, has been dull. Sales limited, quotations for shipment being generally above the market. There has been good private demand for Australasian leather, and business has favoured importers. Private trade in basils has been irregular, with only moderate supplies offering.

COPRA.

Copra is quiet, but firmer than it has been, with few sellers. South Sea, Feb.-March, and March-April, is £26 7s 6d buyers, London.

SHEEPSKINS.

At the second series of this year's "colonial" woolled sheepskin sales, there was a total offering of about 9500 bales. A good demand was in evidence, and, compared with the January sales, values realised show an advance of about ½d to ¾d per lb for merino combings, while short-woolled growths were ½d to ¾d per lb cheaper. Crossbred skins were ¼d to 1½d higher all round. The offerings included 1315 bales from New South Wales, 334 Queensland, 2261 Victorian, 671 South Australian, 851 Western Australian, 29 Tasmanian, and 171) New Zealand.

LECTURES AND DEMONSTRATIONS.

The Department of Agriculture advises that the following lectures and demonstrations have been arranged for the week ending May 8:—

Demonstrations in Winter Pruning, by the Assistant Fruit Expert, Mr. J. G. H. Bryant: Goondarin Creek (Mount Keira), on Tuesday, May 4, at Mr. A. C. Brown's orchard, commencing at 11.30 a.m.; Cordeaux River (Wollongong), at Mr. Walker's orchard, on Wednesday, May 5, commencing at 9 a.m.; Mount Keira, at Mr. J. Porter's orchard, on Wednesday, May 5, commencing at 2 p.m.

By Mr. Le Gay Brereton, orchardist at the Glen Innes experiment farm: Woolbrook, at Mr. J. Bernon's orchard, on Wednesday, May 5, commencing at 10.30 a.m.; at Mr. Dodds's orchard, on Wednesday, May 5, in the afternoon.

Red Range.—Lecture by the Sheep and Wool Expert, Mr. J. W. Mathews, to be delivered in the Literary Institute Hall on Tuesday, May 4, under the auspices of that institution.

FOR HOSPITAL SATURDAY.

In aid of the Hospital Saturday appeal, a garden party was arranged at the Wentworth Hotel winter garden yesterday afternoon by Mrs. C. Carmichael, Mrs. Pollock, and Mrs. Mergentheim. The attendance was large, and the result satisfactory. Mrs. Maclurcan kindly supplied the refreshments, and the use of the winter garden was given by the directors. The afternoon was delightfully fine, and the open air concert provided by Mr. Harry Thomas, assisted by Miss Geraldine Ward, Miss Ada Baker, Miss Vera Hall, Mrs. J. Malden, Messrs. Murray Gibbs, H. Stone, Vern Barnett, and Chas. Smythe, was much appreciated. Among those present were: Mrs. Holman, Mr. and Mrs. and Miss Denison Miller, Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Patterson, Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Cohen, Mesdames Geo. Black, J. H. Cann, Fred. Flowers, Frankl, Ackman, F. Vale, W. Low, Kyngdon Smith, Ross Saywell, W. Walsh, C. Yule, L. Packer, Neely, E. Paul, Harkness, McCarthy, Griffith, Lee Brown, Misses Hardy, J. Marks, Gerrard. Mrs. Watson Hall represented the Lady Mayoress, who is still away from home.

IF FOODS WERE PLACED IN ORDER OF MERIT?

Place every food for children, invalids, and the aged in its order of merit, and you place Benger's Food first.

This is because Benger's Food is "retained when all other foods are rejected." Benger's is a highly nutritive farinaceous food, expressly devised to be prepared with fresh new milk.

It contains two important digestive principles, which become active as soon as preparation of the food begins, and Benger's combines with the milk to form a highly nutritive cream, in which both the milk and the food are made very easy to assimilate.

No other food is capable of the regulated self-digestion which is possible with Benger's Food. The ability to stop the self-digestion at any desired stage, or carry it almost to completion is a power for good in the hands of intelligent people.

Full directions are given with every tin of Benger's Food. All chemists, etc., sell it.—Advt.

THE BUILDERS.

EFFECT OF INDUSTRIAL UNIONISM.

DECREASED EFFICIENCY.

BRISBANE, Thursday.

The convention of the Master Builders' Association of Australia was continued to-day.

Mr. Williamson (New South Wales) read a paper on the affiliation of the building trades, setting out a number of cogent reasons in favour of such affiliation.

Mr. Phillips (Victoria) supported affiliation, but agreed with Mr. Williamson that master builders should be at liberty to carry out the whole work of a building, including plumbing, plastering, etc., without sub-letting.

Mr. Wm. Stuart (New South Wales) said what they had to meet was industrial legislation and unionism, the results of which had been increased wages, decreased efficiency, and the imposition of conditions which were unnecessary and harassing. Their difficulties were probably not so much due to increased wages as to decreased efficiency and harassing conditions. He thought combination absolutely necessary. The position had been so completely realised in New South Wales that with the exception of the master plumbers a united front was presented against all aggression.

A sub-committee was appointed to draft a resolution dealing with the subject.

Mr. C. Langford (Vic.) read a paper on industrial efficiency. He dealt with the regrettable falling off in the general efficiency of workers, which he attributed to general prosperity of the country, and consequent ease with which employment was obtained.

Mr. Williamson (New South Wales) read a paper on apprenticeship in relation to industrial laws.

Mr. Stuart (New South Wales) moved, and Mr. Langford (Vic.) seconded, and it was agreed: "That the tendency of industrial legislation and the onward aims of socialists had made closer union amongst employers necessary for the preservation of their legitimate interests, and this federation of master builders urges upon the State associations that every legitimate means be adopted to secure closer cohesion amongst those employers engaged in the industry; (2) that associations of employers in allied trades should affiliate on the common ground of industrial legislation, and should not permit minor differences to prevent such affiliation."

Speaking on the matters raised, Mr. Pringle (New South Wales) said he did not want to pose as a prophet, but he thought the apprenticeship legislation foreshadowed in New South Wales would have a compulsory clause for the employment of apprentices.

The resolution moved by Mr. Stuart, and seconded by Mr. Phillips (Vic.), to the effect that the conference considered the employment of workmen by the Governments had materially affected the efficiency of workmen, and that the Government policy had discouraged the proper training of tradesmen, was carried unanimously.

Mr. D. A. Swanson (Vic.) read a paper on "Day Labour versus Contract," making special allusion to the new postal sorting building in Melbourne, where the cost of bricklaying was half as much again by day labour as it would have been under award wages. He also mentioned the trans-Australian railway, saying it was a good proposition for the men, but a poor one for the taxpayers.

Mr. R. J. Stabb (Tas.) read a paper on the breaches of wages boards by the Government and public bodies, saying that the Government paid men 9s a day and the private employer had to pay 11s.

The conference adjourned until to-morrow.

SCARCITY OF FODDER.

MR. HALL'S DECISION.

STOCKS MAY BE SEIZED.

The State Attorney-General stated yesterday that he had come to the conclusion that, in view of the scarcity of chaff, exports should be discouraged in every possible way.

"I undertake," said Mr. Hall, "if there are any firms in New South Wales who disregard the wishes of the Government in this matter, to promptly exercise the powers conferred under the Necessary Commodities Control Act, and seize the stocks." The Attorney-General made this declaration with reference to the recent decision of the Necessary Commodities Control Commission concerning the prices to be charged for hay and chaff.

"To-day," said the Minister, "I called a meeting of the Sussex-street trade to discuss the decision of the commission. It was pointed out that a return had been called for of the hay and chaff in the country at the present time. So far as can be ascertained, about 70,000 tons of hay and chaff will be required to carry through until the new season's crop begins to come in during October. As it is very doubtful whether there is this amount of fodder in New South Wales, the feeling of the conference was unanimously in favour of retaining all supplies for State purposes. It was agreed that export should be discouraged in every possible way. This becomes more necessary, as the Government itself requires many thousands of tons of chaff to meet the needs of farmers who are experiencing great difficulty in feeding their horses while getting in their new crops."

Mr. Hall has invited a number of retail produce merchants to meet him this afternoon to discuss their position. He intimated that it was likely that a proclamation would issue this week, embodying the recommendations of the Necessary Commodities Control Commission with regard to prices for hay and chaff.

FIXING OF PRICES.

When declaring a retail selling price for hay and chaff on Wednesday the chairman of the Necessary Commodities Control Commission (Mr. Justice Edmunds) stated that on the evidence given the commission was unable to deal with the fixing of prices for the lower grades of chaff.

In consequence of the numerous inquiries which have since been received by the secretary, however, the Commissioners have decided to meet on Monday at 2 p.m., and go thoroughly into the matter.

POSITION IN WESTERN AUSTRALIA.

PERTH, Thursday.

With a view to ascertain the actual position in this State so far as supplies of hay, chaff, and straw are concerned, the Control of Trade Commission has decided to call upon all holders of these commodities to furnish returns showing the quantities of each held by them as on May 1 next.

ROYAL COLONIAL INSTITUTE.

Sir Harry Wilson, K.C.M.G., acting honorary secretary of the Royal Colonial Institute, London, in a letter addressed to Mr. H. Campbell Macfie, the hon. secretary of the N.S.W. branch, says that in consequence of the war the council has decided to abandon the annual dinner usually held on or near Empire Day, May 24. It is assumed, he adds, that for the same reason the dinners usually held overseas will not take place.

AGRICULTURAL IMPLEMENTS.

At last night's meeting of the Labour Council, Mr. E. Davis, on behalf of the Australian Society of Engineers, protested against the purchase of machinery and agricultural implements for the State wheat area at Woodlands outside the State. He said a large amount of New South Wales taxpayers' money was being spent in this way in America and Victoria. The result was that several local agricultural implement works were idle.

Mr. Cahill (Bricklayers' Union) moved,—"That the council affirm merely the principle that establishments in this State be given an equal opportunity to supply the machinery and implements required, as is given to other States."

Mr. Connell (Ironmoulders) said that the rates of wages were considerably lower in Victoria and South Australia than in New South Wales. Such low standards of wages were the great stumbling block to New South Wales artisans, when fighting for higher wages.

A deputation was appointed to bring the matter under the notice of the Minister in charge of the wheat cultivation area.

MISS GLENFIELD'S RECITAL.

Miss Lottie Glenfield's chief success at her dramatic entertainment at St. James's Hall last night was made in "Queen Catherine's Defence before Henry VIII." Herein, richly attired in black velvet and gold robes, and in a quaint headdress of the period, she delivered with dignity and feeling the lines addressed to the King, and was equally good in Catherine's defiance of the Cardinal where "her drops of tears were turned to sparks of fire." Miss Glenfield was not so well [illegible] in Street's so-called "humorous" sketch, "A Brilliant Speech." The realism of the actress in suggesting the utter failure of a silly, empty-headed woman to remember two consecutive ideas became necessarily tedious. However, Miss Glenfield pleased in various other selections, notably in the clever dialogue (with Mr. Hugh D. Jennings), of "The First Days of Dawn," and again in the more vivacious comedietta, "A Happy Pair," with Mr. Harrison Allen. On the musical side, in the absence at Kempsey of Mr. Malcolm McEacharn, his brother, Mr. Frank McEachern, proved an excellent understudy in baritone songs, and Signor Torzillo was also encored for his harp solos.

STUDENT MOVEMENT.

PRINCIPAL FRASER'S VISIT.

RELIGION IN THE UNIVERSITIES.

Principal Fraser, M.A., of Trinity College, Kandy, who is visiting Australia in connection with the Student Christian Movement and the Church Missionary Association, was entertained at luncheon at Baumann's Cafe yesterday by Sir James Fairfax, who is the hon. treasurer of the New South Wales branch of the movement.

Among those present were:—Archbishop Wright, Professor MacIntyre, Principal Davies, Principal Thatcher, Sir P. Sydney Jones, Sir Thomas Anderson Stuart, Dr. Radford, the Revs. C. J. Prescott, F. V. Dowling, and P. J. Bazeley, Messrs. F. Winchcombe, A. W. Meeks, and G. Earp, Ms.L.C., A. C. Cocks, M.L.A., Drs. Pockley, McClelland, and Skipton Stacy, Messrs. J. Russell French, T. A. Dibbs, J. Kent, G. F. Todman, J. M. Sandy, J. O. Fairfax, T. W. Heney, C. B. Fletcher, T. Pratt, R. N. Teece, R. S. Gregson, Chas. Saard, A. Turnbull, W. E. Shaw, R. A. Bell, Jas. A. Murdoch, Alfred Daking Smith, J. Kirkland, A. B. Templeman, W. N. Cuthbertson, G. J. Littlejohn, G. N. Merivale, John Reid, C. R. Walsh, H. N. Sloman, W. A. Purves, Buckingham, G. B. Smith, W. Cooper, W. Roberts, R. A. Dallen, Thos. Ridley, W. W. Campbell, A. M. Hemsley, J. Vickery, C. Luke, T. Wills, J. Stinson, J. R. Frith, W. Macpherson, D. Carson, R. Lysaght, Arthur Yates, Gelling, R. A. Noble and G. F. Cranewick (president and vice-president respectively of the Sydney University Christian Union), and F. C. Philip.

Sir James Fairfax, in welcoming Principal Fraser, said that the Student Christian Movement was one of the most important affecting young manhood, and womanhood too, particularly those who had passed through or were passing through our universities. Possibly some present might remember that just about 20 years ago a number of gentlemen engaged in general, financial, mercantile, and business pursuits, as well as some representatives of the Churches, the Young Men's Christian Association, and the University, had accepted an invitation to lunch to hear Mr. (now Dr.) J. R. Mott unfold his plans for the introduction of bible study and religious mutual help into the universities. Dr. Mott had explained in a very impressive manner—and anyone who had heard him speak could not help being convinced—the meaning of this new and important movement. The foremost universities in America had received it with gratitude, and it had impressed the professors and students. It had made great strides in Great Britain and Ireland, and the visit of Dr. Mott to Australia 20 years ago had started the association in Sydney University. The movement amongst the students was growing fast, and they would hear from Mr. Teece, chairman of the New South Wales branch, of its progress and present strength and its influence on graduates and under-graduates. Principal Fraser's great experience in educational matters and his knowledge of the Students' Christian Movement would enable him to give a very special interest, and useful lessons and encouragement, in a matter which concerned the young life of our universities, and through the universities the young life of Australians. Principal Fraser's visit here had been all too short, and they would have been glad if time had permitted him to see more of the people and their institutions and country. (Hear, hear.) He could assure him that his addresses to students here and in other places would, like those of the Rev. William Temple, leave a mark and be long remembered. (Applause.)

Principal Fraser, who had a splendid reception, traced the history of the Student Movement, which was now working in thirty different countries, and had a membership which reached the impressive total of 160,000. They could imagine what an enormous force that represented. He had himself first made his acquaintance with the movement at Oxford. On his entrance to Oxford he had not taken the slightest interest in religious matters, but the movement had "gripped" him early in his career. He well remembered his introduction to Dr. Mott, to whom Sir James Fairfax had referred. A gawky young American when he first came to Oxford, he had not been able to get more than forty or fifty men to listen to him, but now there would be a roll-up of a couple of thousand at any time Dr. Mott gave an address. When he (the speaker) had first gone to the University the religious movement was not very strong, but it was amazing how it had developed of late years. Oxford was full now of earnest Christian men, and the colleges were taking a great interest in social work. He had noticed that the students were not so flippant, and that more seriousness was shown in their debates. Altogether, there had been a wonderful change. A greater amount of work was being carried out in the slums of London at present than ever before, and this result was largely due to this new movement, that was making such splendid headway. The movement might be said to be the most cosmopolitan society in the world, and one which possessed tremendous possibilities for influence. It was going to have a big influence on international questions. He knew a German professor who had since the war broke out written to a once intimate English friend, and said, "Henceforward there can be no more communion between me and any member of the English race." This hatred of everything English by the Germans, as a whole, was hard to understand, but without discussing that feature he did desire to emphasise the difference in the attitude of those in the world-wide Student Christian Movement. The leaders of that movement in Germany were still friendly with the leaders in England and other countries, and those were the men who, when this dreadful war was over, would work to bring about a better feeling. In Austria, as far as the Student Movement was concerned, there was no race question. The influence of the movement in the direction of international peace would be very great. It tended to widen the imperial outlook of members, and, more important still, was going to be a great factor in the unifying of the Churches. The movement was knocking hard spikes off some of the tough old leaders of the Churches. (Laughter.) It was making a tremendous difference in church life in England, and it would do the same elsewhere. The supply of theological students had been dropping off, till the leaders of the movement were appealed to, and that year there had been an increase of 1500 students. The whole tone of college life was being changed. Association with the movement was educating men much more than they knew. Looking back on his own university career, the best, the most useful part of it, dated from his connection with the movement. It had widened his outlook. Twenty or thirty years ago there were very few university men in the mission field: and now the total number of volunteers since the movement began was 8487. Not only had the efficiency of their schools and universities been increased by the movement, but it represented a new and powerful force that was bound to exert a tremendous influence in many directions in the future. (Applause.)

Mr. R. N. Teece, chairman of the State Council of the Student Christian Movement, said that their endeavour was to supply the need for spiritual and religious life in their purely secular institutions of learning, and to deepen and strengthen it where it already existed. He thanked Sir James Fairfax for the great assistance he had always given. Sir James had been a member of the advisory committee practically ever since the foundation of the movement in Sydney, and had for a number of years acted as honorary treasurer, and whenever they had required assistance and had gone to him they had never come away disappointed. (Hear, hear.)

A vote of thanks to Sir James Fairfax was moved by Archbishop Wright.

Principal Fraser left last evening for Melbourne. He will deliver a series of addresses there.

FRIDAY, APRIL 30, 1915.

WHAT IS THE TRUTH?

Field-Marshal Sir John French reports that the German attack upon Ypres has been definitely stopped. Elsewhere our cablegrams state that the second phase of the battle began on Monday, when the British and French counter-attacked; while from Amsterdam comes the news that German reinforcements are exhausted, and the tide of the fighting has turned in favour of the Allies, who, with thousands of fresh troops, have assumed the offensive. What everybody wants to know, of course, is how much of this is true, and how far the Germans are from being beaten. Perhaps the better way of meeting the difficulty is to ask: "What is the truth about any battle that has only just been joined?" What is true of the patterns in a kaleidoscope? Every turn of the instrument gives you the same field and the identical colours, but nothing is quite the same. In a great battle like the one now proceeding the tide of victory must ebb and flow, and the truth is necessarily a thing of shreds and patches. The Germans use the truth in this form to deceive the enemy, and keep up the hearts of an anxious nation. Their half or quarter truth is thus made the greatest possible lie. But out of the fog in which everything is still wrapped we have Sir John French's word that the German attack upon Ypres has been definitely stopped. That shows no embroidery, nor does it convey any meaning to our minds other than that at the given place the Allied forces now hold the Germans. For the essential thing to remember is that the enemy once more seems to have staked all upon a surprise, with dispositions of army corps to carry everything through upon a tremendous rush. This time, however, what was lacking in preponderant man power—the prevailing element in the rush upon Paris—was supplied by poisonous gases set free in the main line of trenches, which were abandoned to trap our troops. But, again, the plan has failed. The fighting claimed in Berlin as a glorious German victory turns out to have been a defeat in the sense that success was not achieved. The object in view was still Calais, and Calais is further off than ever. A reply may be made that this is only partly true. In point of actual distance Calais may be nearer to the Germans than before they turned the taps of their outlawed gas pipes in the trenches and smothered the brave Canadian and French soldiers without giving them a fighting chance. But Sir John French is apparently satisfied. He is not the man to claim an advantage which must inevitably prove to be half-way to disaster; and while his report and the Berlin communique coincide up to a certain point, the British commander's assurance represents a serious divergence from the German suggestion of a British check. The Germans were massed to do a great thing. They were ordered to break the British and French lines, and get to the coast, and they have failed. Are they now being hammered and taken in flank themselves? Sir John French does not say; but we have so much faith in his courage and straightforwardness that we are quite willing to believe that the whole position is developing in our favour.

Let anybody who wishes to understand all that is involved in this statement carefully read Sir John French's despatch of November 20, dealing with the battle of Ypres-Armentieres. It may be found in the eleventh volume of the "Oxford War Pamphlets." Of that wonderful struggle the comment of the writer, who gives a short introduction, is:—"We are left with the impression that the enemy possessed the advantage in mobility, in accurate information, in unity of control, and, above all, in numbers; but that the marvellous discipline of the British infantry, the accuracy of the British artillery and rifle fire, and the doggedness of the British general officers, retrieved a situation which an umpire in manoeuvres would have declared to be hopeless." This for the moment applies to the battle which has opened over practically the same ground; and the Canadians deserve to be associated now with every word of the last part of the above quotation. But the general comments of Sir John French in November last should be read now by those who are asking when the great advance is to be made, and who are inclined to insist that the Germans hold the Allies in chancery. Where are the new British armies? Why were the Allied forces on the Yser recently taken by surprise? Such are the questions which so many are asking to-day; and the British Field-Marshal in effect says to us now, as he said then:—"The role which our armies in the west have been called upon to fulfil has been to occupy strong defensive positions, holding the ground gained and inviting the enemy's attack; to throw these attacks back, causing the enemy heavy losses in his retreat, and following him up with powerful and successful counter-attacks to complete his discomfiture." To those who would insist that with the spring there should be a general advance, and a speedy end to the war, Sir John French's reminder of November is timely in April. The combined Allied armies in the west and the Russian forces in the east are fighting Germany and Austria held between them; while on the side of the enemy the object is "to stem the Russian advance till the western forces could be completely defeated and overwhelmed." These are Sir John French's own words. In the second battle of Ypres the German strategy is still consistent, and a desperate and determined effort has been made to recover an offensive lost through a deadly winter, in which no rest was ever allowed by the vigilant Allies. Now it is reasonable to suppose that the situation will steadily develop in the latter's favour; but always on the principle of the tides, that in their flow seem to be losing ground when most surely advancing. We must think of the east, of Turkey and the Dardanelles, of Italy and the Balkans, when growing impatient over the west, for in good time there will be victory, in which these factors will have a place.

HOSPITAL SATURDAY.

The charitable instincts of the people of Sydney will be put to a severe test to-morrow, when the annual Hospital Saturday collection will be held. New South Wales in general and Sydney in particular have responded admirably to the appeals which have been made from Europe and from our own citizens since the beginning of the war. In spite of a serious drought and of many other adverse influences the more important funds for the relief of sufferers from the war have been well filled. New South Wales has given as much as any part of the Empire to the Red Cross, probably more. If the average of the last few weeks is maintained we shall continue to do more for the Belgian Relief Fund than we have been asked to do, though not more than is needed. If we are to be judged by these and other new appeals there can be no doubt that the Australian reputation for generosity will be well maintained. But the real test will come when the annual appeals are renewed. Are we then to save the money that has been given to one charity by cutting down the amount usually set aside for another? If we do Hospital Saturday will this year be a failure. But economy of such a kind will show a serious change from the spirit with which Australians have met the many demands made upon them since the outbreak of the war. As a rule, the test has not been the number of subscriptions asked for, but the nature of the object of the fund. If it is a good object it will draw money from the public no matter how late its appearance in the field. We believe that the appeal of the collectors on Saturday will be met in the same spirit. The citizen when he is being harassed or when he is making his preparations will not remember that he has already given away more than a fair proportion of his income. He will rather decide that the claims made upon him in previous years have not been superseded but have been increased by the one great event which has inspired so many appeals.

Hospital Saturday has been too long an annual occasion for anyone to question the wisdom of setting aside one day in the year for such a purpose. Under a strong organisation the work has now been made to include all the suburbs and at the same time to come under the notice of that section of the community for whom the hospitals are especially intended to provide. The collection has grown larger each year, and each year has become regarded with greater certainty as an element in their revenue by those institutions among which it is distributed. This year every charity needs its share of the fund more than ever. In two of the chief sources of revenue there has been an inevitable falling-off. There have been few entertainments for local charities, every performer and every ticket-seller having preferred to concentrate his or her energies on the relief of sufferers from the war. There have been fewer private subscriptions, the large firms who are regular subscribers having felt the gradual diminution in consuming power on the part of their customers, and individuals having either felt their incomes cut down or their charity diverted. Yet the very fact which caused the flow of supplies to dry up imposes an additional strain on charitable institutions. Although in Australia we have felt the war less than any other part of the Empire, perhaps less than any other part of the world, still numbers of people have been thrown out of employment, and numbers have not received the income that they had grown to expect. The very reduction in luxuries, in festivities, and extravagances, which is the first impulse of every decent-minded man, adds to the number of persons who are to some extent dependent on charity, if not as an element in their lives, at least as a resource in time of emergency. Hospitals are, in fact, in the same position as many individuals since the war started. Their income has decreased, and the number of calls upon them have increased considerably. But the individual, when he thinks of his pecuniary misfortunes, has to think of the blessings which he owes to citizenship of this country. Charitable offerings to Belgian, Servian, or Polish funds are thankofferings for the dispensation which has left us in security, which has protected our homes from destruction, and our lives from danger. Thankofferings cannot be made an excuse for diminishing an annual gift. The fund is bound to suffer from the absence of those men and women who have nothing left to give. It will need the more from those who can. Such gifts when placed in their true light are part of the duty of Australians who stay at home while their brothers are fighting. In giving them we are looking after those who are left behind just as truly as if we were subscribing to the patriotic fund. Our subscriptions will be part of our ransom, though in the smallest coin of the realm, and will be measured only by the needs of the hospitals and the calls made upon them.

FOR INVENTORS.

A NATIONAL BUREAU.

Those interested in the establishment of a "national war invention and science bureau" held a further conference yesterday afternoon at the Royal Agricultural Societies' rooms. Dr. Henry G. Chapman, assistant-professor of physiology at the Sydney University, presided.

It was stated that the Premier had been approached with a view to the Government sending a cablegram to the High Commissioner (Sir George Reid), stating that it had been suggested in Sydney that £100,000 be raised to establish and equip in England a bureau to assist inventors in experiments, and, by rewards, to encourage the Empire's thinkers, some probably in humble circumstances; and also to introduce valuable scientific inventions, suggestions, and schemes, which would be systematically collected, and finally adopted or discarded, and, if necessary, elaborated upon by a highly expert staff under British Government supervision. The Premier (Mr. Holman) had not seen his way clear to forward the message or to interest the Federal or State Governments in the matter.

The meeting thereupon decided to cable to Sir George Reid, stating that, if the British Government would concur in the proposal, the committee in Sydney would do its utmost to raise sufficient funds, by local subscription, for the purpose.

Mr. W. F. Flocssell, with whom the idea originated, stated that it was hoped to hold the next meeting under the auspices of the University of Sydney. The general feeling was that if the bureau was established in Australia it would not fulfil its purpose in a national way. It was desired to give the British authorities everything of practical value ready to be manufactured and used for the shortening of the present and other conflicts.

EMPIRE DAY.

SCHOOL CELEBRATIONS.

SPECIAL ARRANGEMENTS.

Despite the fact that Empire Day has been declared a public holiday, the Public schools will hold their customary celebrations. The Department of Public Instruction hopes that the schools will be the main rallying point for patriotic displays in each district. A special appeal will be made for an Empire Day collection in aid of the Belgian Fund.

The following circular has been issued by the department, with a view to securing unity of effort on May 24:—

"The Government has proclaimed Empire Day, May 24, a public holiday this year, to enable the public to participate in the school celebrations of that day.

"The schools will, therefore, not be closed. Ordinary work, however, will be suspended, and the pupils will assemble at such time as is found suitable to the arrangements made locally for the occasion. It is presumed that the residents will co-operate with the principal teacher and his staff in making the celebration a suitable one. No special procedure is laid down, since the experience of past years and the circumstances of the locality will best determine the character of the function for each school. Where a general desire is expressed for the grouping of adjacent schools, the teachers of the schools concerned might facilitate it if the means are available for carrying out such a plan successfully.

"As portion of the day's proceedings will probably on this occasion be devoted to the giving of addresses to both adults and to children, it is very desirable that the addresses to the children should be short, so that the significance of the occasion may not be lost through the children becoming wearied of long speeches.

"The opportunity might also be taken to recognise the claims of those who are plunged into poverty and want through the disasters of war. An appeal might well be made through the celebrations of the day to the people of New South Wales for a still further exercise of their generosity towards the wives and children of the nations that are to-day combined with the British Empire against a common enemy. The children of New South Wales might hear the cry of the children of the devastated lands of Europe, and come to their help.

"We think of a great Empire, with its many peoples united in one great purpose, with one navy and one army working together with one determination. We remember the sacrifices of Allies joined with us in the same cause. We are proud that we Australians have taken up our share of the burden. But behind it all we ought to remember that in Belgium there are children asking their mothers in vain for bread, and that these, hungry and naked because their lands are laid bare by war, should not call in vain to the children of this more fortunate land of ours.

"Let this Empire Day, therefore, become a day for extending the helping hand. The children of the schools might collect whatever sums they can in the meantime, and bring them to the school on that day under arrangements the teachers find it best to make.

The principal teacher of each school is requested to report the amount of the Empire Day collections, apart from moneys obtained by other efforts, and to forward the amount to the department, or to the local Belgian Fund."

RUGBY LEAGUE TOUR.

NOT TO MAKE MONEY.

NEW ZEALAND WILL SEND TEAM

AUCKLAND (N.Z.), Thursday.

The proposed Australian tour by a team of Rugby League footballers was discussed by the New Zealand League.

The matter was brought up by the reading of a cablegram from the secretary of the New South Wales League, who stated that his committee had decided to adhere to the original programme.

Mr. Carlaw, president of the New Zealand League, explained that the invitation was received to tour Australia, and the first match is to be played in Sydney on June 5.

The New Zealand League had agreed to the tour, providing that the matches were not played until August. They had all seen the criticism in regard to the New Zealand League's acceptance of the invitation. The critics seemed to be of the opinion that the object of the tour was to make money, but such was not the case. The New Zealand League's idea was simply to repay the visit made by the New South Wales team last year. They were not out to make money, but to foster the game. He advocated that the New Zealand League's share of the profits should be handed over to the New Zealand Belgian Fund; but, of course, he could not say what the New South Wales League would do with its share of the profits.

He proposed that, provided that the New South Wales League agreed to the dates suggested by the New Zealand League, the tour would take place, and that the net proceeds would be handed to the New Zealand Belgian Fund. The motion was carried unanimously.

The Auckland branch of the League resolved that, in view of the present crisis and the depletion of the representative ranks, the time was not opportune to send a team to Australia.

WAR AND FINANCE.

A BANKER'S VIEWS.

"EXCEPTIONALLY STRONG POSITION."

WHAT HAD TO BE REALISED.

Mr. J. Russell French, general manager of the Bank of New South Wales, who presided over last night's meeting of the Institute of Bankers, held at the rooms of the Royal Exchange, delivered an address which had outstanding features because of the events of the year.

Mr. Russell French said the various units of the Empire had one and all come forward with aid to the mother country. Dealing with the situation in Australia, he said it had been a very fortunate circumstance that the position of the banking institutions on the eve of the war was one of exceptional strength in respect of their gold reserves. They had, for some time past, pursued a conservative policy, and had inculcated in their clients the desirableness of following the same course in their own individual transactions. By good fortune it turned out there were certain local considerations which caused the adoption of this policy. The position was a good one, and trade in general was in a satisfactory state—except for the fact that practically the whole of the wheat area of the continent was suffering from an unprecedented drought. Still, all had to realise that responsibility meant standing shoulder to shoulder, and devising means of carrying into effect such measures as might be deemed necessary to protect the country from disaster. There had been a subordination of private views to the interests of general good. There was nothing locally to indicate that the strength of the institutions would not be sufficient to meet individual trouble. The closing of the Stock Exchange had shut a door which might have let in a disastrous flood of trouble.

The institutions had to realise the possibility that there would be a considerable drain on the deposits, legitimate or unnecessary, as the case might be. It had to be recognised also that a falling-off in the productive capacity of the country, such as wool and wheat, might mean a collapse of a serious character. Collated thereto, it had to be understood, would be the difficulty of providing exchange facilities inwards and outwards under war conditions, which could not be forecasted from one week's end to another. There was also the problem of the financial carrying on of the producing interests beyond the point of dealing with the past year's products. These interests had to be carried on. To stop production meant to stop trade, and to stop trade meant that commercially and financially the community would bleed to death—and, besides these demands, the dislocation caused by the war rendered inevitable some requirements on the part of the various Governments. There never was, he was glad to say, any real fear that a moratorium might have to be put in force in this country, as it was in the old country and in some of the dominions. But it was evident that some steps were necessary to ensure that there was a sufficiency of currency in the country to carry on really necessary financial operations, without causing an undue pressure on the financial institutions.

THE NOTE ISSUE.

"The note issue which, of course, as you all know," proceeded Mr. Russel French, "is in Australia a Commonwealth responsibility, was very reasonably looked to here to take some share in carrying the burden; and the note issues of the banks themselves were looked to in New Zealand, where there is no Government to perform the like service there, by means of an extension of the powers of the banks in regard to the creation of temporary safeguards and to their presentation for cash. At the outset all parties here were in agreement on the point that there should be an ample gold backing for any extension of the issue. The national reserves of gold for the note issue is 25 per cent., and prior to the war the normal amount of notes outstanding was about £10,000,000. Of this, it may be assumed, that something like half were in circulation among the Commonwealth at large, and half were held by the banks as ordinary till money. There had always been more than the 25 per cent. reserve held in gold by the Commonwealth Treasury. The amount now outstanding was something like £25,000,000, and there was upwards of 33 per cent. of gold held for it. But the proportion of notes held by the banks was much larger now that the proportion held by the public, though the quantity held by the latter was a good deal more than it was before the war began. The position amounts to this—that, owing to the banks not presenting surplus notes for cash, the Treasury is able to maintain a larger circulation in existence than would otherwise be the case, and the banks have larger currency reserves than would otherwise be the case, in all probability. And, besides this, the banks have assisted in the operation by the exchange of a moderate quantity of gold for notes, which has still further helped to extend the Treasury issue."

WHEN THE CRISIS IS OVER.

However justifiable an expansion of a note issue over normal requirements might be to meet a temporary stringency, care must be taken (1) to limit the expansion to a reasonable figure; (2) to keep an adequate gold backing; (3) to keep steadily in view the redemption when the crisis is over. "I have reason to believe that those who are in control of the Commonwealth note issue," he added, "realise the cogency of these considerations. The amount now outstanding, taken in conjunction with the gold reserve at the back of it, is not more than the country can stand under the present exceptional circumstances, but in my judgment the question of further expansion will have to be, and I believe will be, carefully considered, for I feel assured that the last thing those who have got this portion of our financial interests in charge desire is to run the slightest risk of a depreciated currency."

"Though the outlook is brighter," concluded Mr. Russell French, "the keynote to all our operations should be caution and watchfulness. We cannot afford to dissipate any of our resources, and it will be a wise and prudent policy to 'go steady' with all our undertakings. I mean this in the widest sense. It is impossible at this stage to judge what the course of the war is going to be, how long it is going to last, nor what will be the after effects when it is all over. It will be the highest wisdom to conserve every ounce of our strength and resources until the result is fully realised." (Applause.)

COMMONWEALTH'S POSITION.

Mr. Denison Miller (governor of the Commonwealth Bank), who moved a hearty vote of thanks to the president for his address, said that no doubt a great deal of the prominence given to Australia during the past few months had been owing to the fact that first of all we volunteered, like the rest of the Dominions, to send our young men to take part in the fighting. We had also been an important factor in supplying food to the men at the front, besides wool for clothing, and other necessaries to assist them to fight well. Although we had been unable to send any wheat, still the very fact that we were producers of necessaries required by the army at the front had done a great deal to bring us prominently before the British people, and to assist us in the great financial requirements since carried out. The gold reserves held by the banks were the backbone of all finance. In Australia the gold reserve had been increased, and had not been drawn upon during this crisis. The bank figures showed that the returns were increasing, despite the fact that they had been giving sovereigns to the Federal Government. The gold won from the earth of this country was being kept here, and probably during the war there would be no necessity to send any of it away. The present extensive note issue was merely a matter of adjustment, and would cause nobody any alarm whatever. The note issue was at present well in hand. It was known by those in authority how far this was going, and how much gold would be at the back of it—that was, if they took the term of the war forecasted by Lord Kitchener, and the fact that, no matter how difficult the position in England, there was still always a certain amount of money that could be got for a Commonwealth like Australia, which could be used as time went on in redemption, or in putting our own affairs in order. (Applause.)

The vote was carried by acclamation.

STRIKE.

BOILERMAKERS CEASE WORK.

OBJECT TO REDUCED WAGES.

The dissatisfaction with the recently-gazetted No. 2 award, covering members of the Boilermakers' Union, culminated yesterday in about 60 of the men refusing work.

For some considerable time this union has been in a state of ferment. The union complained that there was undue delay in the issue of the award, on which the board had been deliberating for about eight months. A good deal of this delay was due to the fact that the employers' and the employees' representatives could not agree on the terms of the award, and it was left to the chairman of the board, Mr. Newberry, to make an award. The union, after some further delay, threatened to hold a "stop work" meeting unless the award were issued by Wednesday last. The chairman completed his deliberations, and issued two awards. No. 1 covered boilermakers proper, while No. 2 covered a large section of the union engaged in iron and steel structural works. No. 1 award was satisfactory to the union. It gave increased wages. No. 2 was roundly condemned. It provided for 9s per day for skilled iron and steel structural workers, such as shipbuilders and others engaged on buildings, gasometers, etc., while all these men, when the award was issued, were receiving 11s or 12s per day. Further fuel was added to the men's discontent by reason of the fact that the No. 1 award gave 12s per day to a large number of men whose earnings had hitherto been less than the iron and steel structural mechanics.

The 60 men who refused to recognise the new No. 2 award yesterday were employees of Messrs. R. L. Scrutton, Ultimo, Messrs. Brown and Brown, Pyrmont, and the Sydney Steel Company, at Marrickville. On these three workshops the new No. 2 award was posted, in accordance with the Act, which is a due intimation that the award was to be put into effect.

The secretary of the union, Mr. A. H. Hampton, stated yesterday that even the employers themselves had never asked for such an award. Altogether, he added, about 2000 men would be affected, were it to come into general operation. A large number of these are employed at Newcastle, where as much as 16s per day is being paid for the work now awarded 9s.

A serious aspect of the trouble is that a number of important army and naval contracts may be affected. Union officials, however, seem to be confident that no general attempt will be made to reduce the men to 9s per day.

About 800 men attended a "stop-work" meeting in the Protestant Hall last night, presided over by Mr. W. Murray, the president of the Boilermakers' Union. A resolution was carried condemning the award as "a monstrosity."

Mr. Hampton said after the meeting: "You can say that the union has decided that under no circumstances at all will it respect the structural award."

GROWTH OF SYDNEY.

POPULATION OF 752,500.

The State Government Statistician, Mr. J. B. Trivett, in his report for 1914, states that the population of the metropolitan area at the end of the year was 752,500.

The city population decreased by 5200 (the scheme for improving the city, which has been in progress for several years, necessitating the demolition of a number of dwellings), but the suburban population increased by 32,300. The bulk of the increase again took place in the same districts which have progressed most in recent years, namely, in the northern suburbs (particularly North Sydney, Willoughby, and Ku-ring-gai Shire), in the western (especially Ashfield, Marrickville, and Drummoyne), in the southern (principally in Canterbury, Kogarah, and Rockdale), and in the Eastern Suburbs (Randwick and Waverley).

PAY OF MEMBERS.

VOLUNTARY REDUCTION.

PERTH, Thursday.

The Acting Premier, Mr. Collier, has forwarded a circular letter to members of both Houses of Parliament, inviting them to intimate their willingness to fall into line with the Civil Service by accepting a 7.89 per cent. reduction in their Parliamentary allowance.

The matter was discussed by a number of Liberal members at a meeting held yesterday. The members present and others from whom communications were received were unanimously in favour of consenting to such reduction as the exigency of the financial position might demand, though desiring that their consent should not be regarded as signifying approval of the Government's action in reducing the salaries of Civil servants.

A resolution to this effect was adopted.

PREMIERS' CONFERENCE.

MR. FISHER'S VIEWS.

WELLINGTON (N.Z.), Thursday.

Writing to a friend in Wellington, under date April 19, Mr. Fisher, Prime Minister of the Commonwealth, says: "With regard to the Premiers' Conference, to which you refer with the comment that it might be necessary to arrange for some more efficient news exchange with New Zealand, it is unlikely that Mr. Massey will be able to be present at the conference, and as far as the Commonwealth Government is concerned, its representatives can now only attend as visitors at the invitation of the Premiers of the States.

"I had hoped the conference might have been made more important by the attendance of Mr. Massey and representatives of the Commonwealth as members of the conference, which would then have been Australian in character. I quite agree with you; one of the most desirable reforms in relation to the Dominion and the Commonwealth is the establishment of an improved news exchange. As far as I am concerned, I shall be glad to assist in that direction."

FAREWELL TO MR. VERNE RICHARDSON.

The League of Ancient Mariners of New South Wales tendered a farewell at Sargent's Cafe, Market-street, to Mr. E. Verne Richardson, who is leaving Sydney to take up the position of United States Consul at Salina Cruz, Mexico. Captain S. G. Green presided, and among the speakers were Mr. Alexander Kethel, M.L.C., Captains A. W. Pearse, T. L. Webb, McLeod, and Mr. Hawksley. A photograph of the ancient mariners' picnic at Rushcutter Bay in 1911 was presented to the guest by the chairman. Mr. Verne Richardson said he despaired at ever finding another such league of ancient mariners. Amongst those present were Captains J. M. Banks, Spinks, Newton, Thompson, George Hoyle, J. R. Barter, Belch, Ferrier, Pratt, Norman Murray, Dr. F. Paul, and Messrs. George A. Parkes, Webb, McKillian, and Herron.

HELP THE HOSPITALS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—The people of New South Wales have responded nobly to all the various patriotic appeals which have been made to them since the war began. They have given of their substance freely to provide for the sick and wounded of the soldiers who are fighting for us abroad.

But it is impossible to conceal the fact that, whilst we are doing so well for our soldiers, the sick and suffering poor at our own doors are being stinted. The hospitals have all felt the pinch of hard times since the flow of sympathy set in so strongly towards the seat of war.

Hospital Saturday is upon us. Let us make it a real red letter day. I would appeal specially to all business men and business firms to make such extra donations this year as will give our hospitals the lift which they so badly need.

I am, etc., F. E. WINCHCOMBE,
President, Sydney Chamber of Commerce.
April 29.

WOOL AND WAR.

BUSY MILLS.

A TEXTILE "BOOM."

The present difficulty in the wool trade directs attention to our staple industry. That its position has been materially affected by the war there is no denying. But since hostilities first broke out the whole situation has altered. Then wool was unsalable, and producers saw visions of wool sheds crammed to overflowing with unmarketable fleeces. Now, barring the present deadlock, which is, after all, a matter of minor import, the market is good, and there is every probability of the opening of next season finding us with clean boards. This is, indeed, satisfactory, for upon no commodity is the prosperity of this State more dependent than upon wool. It far transcends in importance the wheat, dairying, or mining industries, and it is the basis of a considerable and growing local manufacture.

BRITISH WOOL TRADE BOOMING.

It is doubtful, we have it on the authority of the "Statist," whether there is another trade in the British Isles that has been as active as the wool trade since the war broke out. The steel and explosives industries have been extremely busy, but not more so than the wool industry. When the war was first declared, the mills stopped altogether. Like the cotton trade, the wool textile trade of Great Britain had the world for its customer, and the declaration of hostilities caused hundreds of orders to be cancelled, not only from shippers and export houses generally, but also from the home retail trade. Everyone expected that the strictest economy would be practised in the matter of clothing, and that fancy goods, at least, would be a drug on the market. Things looked black, but a great change soon occurred.

CLOTHING THE ARMY.

When Lord Kitchener called for three million men he did not worry about their clothing. That was one of the details of a secondary character, a small difficulty, made to be overcome. But it has, together with the great demands of our Allies for cloth, become far away the biggest proposition with which the British wool textile trade has ever had to deal. Three hundred miles of khaki a week from Yorkshire alone since last November, and still the War Office is not supplied, and cannot be for some months! There are manufacturers to-day who hold contracts that will run till next December, and whose full production of khaki till then is sold. The boom began last October, and is not yet showing signs of an end. It is to be feared that the early khaki orders were not executed at a profit. Some manufacturers rushed to secure them as soon as they found the greater part of their ordinary business cancelled, and unemployed machinery and workpeople, with all that this means, staring them in the face. The Government gave out orders freely to all who could make the specified cloths, but in their eagerness to secure them some manufacturers quoted on the then ruling cost of raw materials, and omitted to look ahead. It was a situation in which some of the oldest traders were "caught," and no blame to them, for who would have believed the man who said last October that crossbreds would advance 50 per cent. However, the Government contracts have been the backbone of the whole British textile trade for the last six months.

WORKING DAY AND NIGHT.

At first the pressure was terrific. Workpeople, many of them girls, were minding looms from 6.30 a.m. to 7.30 p.m. in some cases, while 6.30 a.m. to 8.30 p.m. was the general day's run for mills which had no night gangs. Mills began to run all day and all night wherever they could get sufficient operatives to make this possible, and though the oversea trade has practically been cut off, very few indeed grumble. Where it would be accommodated at the present time is a mystery. We will pass over the various disputes that have arisen in the trade between masters and employed about the question of overtime payment, letting it suffice to say that extra hours have been limited for the last two months or more to nine hours a week for women and youths.

GENERAL CONSUMPTIVE DEMAND.

The other aspect of the consumptive end of the trade to be considered to-day is in connection with the business from other sources than the British Government. In the first place, the trade of the United Kingdom is in a fairly healthy state. It is by no means so good as it could be in times of peace, but the great law of compensation has again made itself felt. In Leeds and the Midlands the boot operatives are earning good wages and have a buying power in most cases greater than before the war. The same is true of the steel and explosive trades, which includes South Yorkshire, Tyneside, Middlesbrough and district, the Clyde Valley, Chatham, Woolwich, and Birmingham. In addition to all these the workers of the textile trade themselves are earning bigger wages than formerly, so the fact that the demand from home distributers and retailers for winter, spring, and summer goods has been as strong as usual should surprise nobody. It has been, and still is, a great trouble to the wholesale buyers to find manufacturers who are not so full up with Government orders, but that they can take a few for the home civilian trade.

ORDERS FROM THE ALLIES.

The only other source of contracts to be mentioned is that of the Allied Governments. The French and Russian buyers succeeded early in March in placing some further big orders for military fabrics, and no doubt a good part of the last rise in crossbreds is due to these. The wool trade all round is in a splendid position as far as having plenty of orders is concerned, but there are very real difficulties to be faced, some of them caused by the multitude of these very orders. The war interrupted much wool in transit from the Colonies to England, and many colonial growers thought it policy to ship to this country in place of selling out there. The result has been that big weights of wool are coming forward now, and it was necessary to hold sales in London during five of the first ten weeks of this year. One of the difficulties of the trade is to get the wool to Yorkshire. Shipping is not now to blame. Plenty of raw material is coming to the country, but it is after it is unloaded that the really serious delay begins. This fact may have something to do with the shortage of spot stocks of tops in Bradford, though no doubt the chief reason for this is that combers are short of labourers and are late with delivery. Every lot of tops sent out goes to fill contracts, and as no solution of the labour question seems in sight, it will be impossible for topmakers to accumulate stocks during coming weeks, possibly months.

CROSSBREDS MOST WANTED.

The demand for crossbreds is still paramount. Ever since the first Government orders were given out last September the call for crossbreds has been steady and strong. In spite of increasing supplies and heavy purchasing in New Zealand and, up to a point, in South America prices have steadily risen. There seems to be a demand for these wools that it will take the whole crossbred clip of New Zealand and Australia, as well as the English clip, to satisfy, and as long as the war occasions such tremendous needs for crossbred clothing on the part of our own and allied troops no fall in values can be expected.

The demand has not, however, run entirely on crossbreds. The hosiery trade and the revived dress-goods and coating trade are absorbing great weights of merinos, and the recent admission of neutral countries into the Bradford and London markets has helped to create a strong market.

UNIVERSITY REGISTRAR.

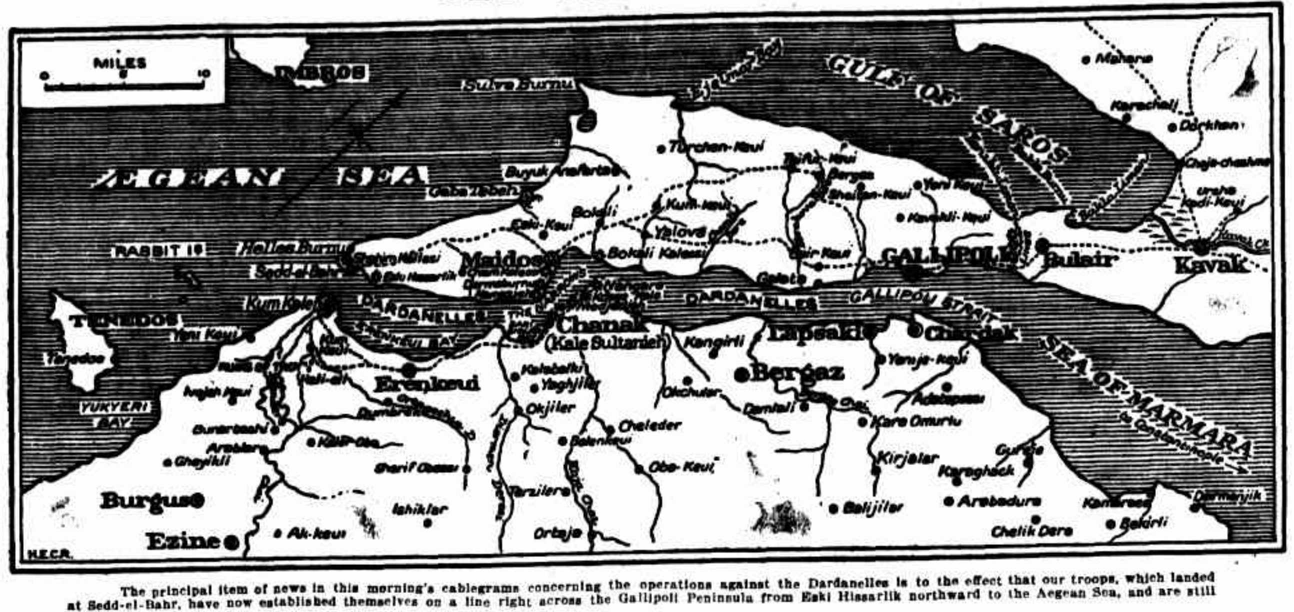
CHARGED WITH EMBEZZLEMENT.

WELLINGTON (N.Z.), Thursday.

Barclay Hector, Registrar of the New Zealand University, was remanded for a week on an embezzlement charge.

The defalcation was alleged to total £1500.

THE DARDANELLES.



The principal item of news in this morning's cablegrams concerning the operations against the Dardanelles is to the effect that our troops, which landed at Sedd-el-Bahr, have now established themselves on a line right across the Gallipoli Peninsula from Eski Hissarlik northward to the Aegean Sea, and are still steadily advancing.

TURKEY.

ALLIES ON LAND.

THE AUSTRALIANS.

FRENCH NAVAL LOSS.

The War Office states that the troops on the Gallipoli Peninsula are steadily advancing.

The Turks claim to have inflicted losses on the Allies, and to have captured a number of Australians.

The French cruiser Leon Gambetta was sunk by an Austrian submarine in the Adriatic.

Out of a complement of 728, only 136 were saved, being rescued by Italian warships.

Field-Marshal French reports that the German attack near Ypres has been definitely stopped.

The Germans are displaying intense activity in North-eastern Poland.

The Russians annihilated a battalion of Austrians in the Carpathians.

INVASION OF TURKEY

ALLIES' ADVANCE.

THE DARDANELLES.

LONDON, April 29.

The War Office states that despite continual opposition the troops have established themselves across the peninsula, north-east of Eski Hassarlik (a few miles north-east of Seddul Bahr), and have beaten off all attacks at Sari Bair. The troops are steadily advancing.

The War Office adds that the Turks' preparations against the Allies' landing included entanglements on land and in the sea, and deep pits with spiked bottoms.

POINTS OF LANDING.

ATHENS, April 28.

Four of the principal points of debarkation of the Allied forces are Sulva (at the north-western extremity of the Gallipoli Peninsula), Helles (at the northern side of the entrance to the straits), Kum Kale (at the southern side), and the Saros coast below Gheninkos, in a line with Gallipoli.

The majority of the forces were landed at Seddul Bahr (on the northern side of the entrance, near Helles).

TURKISH ACCOUNT.

AUSTRALIAN PRISONERS.

A Constantinople communique claims that the Allied troops at Teke Burun and Kum Kale were repulsed to the coast, and a portion returned to the ships.

The allies lost 400 dead and 200 were taken prisoners.

A party of Moslem soldiers on landing with the French at Kum Kale deserted and joined the Turks.

The Turks before Gaba Tepeh took a number of British and Australian prisoners, including a captain and a lieutenant.

FURTHER NORTH.

SOFIA, April 28.

Turkish troops are hastening to Enos (north of the Gulf of Saros, where the Allies were recently reported to have landed troops).

RUSSIAN CAMPAIGN.

IN POLAND.

ENEMY AGAIN ACTIVE.

PETROGRAD, April 29.

A communique states: The enemy is intensely active on the Upper Niemen, also west of the Niemen, north of the Narew, and west of the Mlawa railway.

THE CARPATHIANS.

AUSTRIANS SURRENDER.

PETROGRAD, April 28.

A communique states: An Austrian battalion in the Stry district surrendered.

Airmen bombed German aeroplanes at Sanniki. We captured two Austro-German aeroplanes.

DEFENCE OF CRACOW.

COMMANDERS QUARREL.

It is reported that Field-Marshal von Hindenburg and the Archduke Frederick quarrelled because the former demanded that Austrian troops should be sent to East Prussia when the Archduke wanted them to relieve Przemysl, and are again quarrelling with reference to Cracow.

The Germans declare Cracow is vital to Germany's defences, and demand that civilians shall be removed and certain suburbs razed for military purposes.

The Archduke Frederick resists, fearing a Polish rising.

TSING-TAO.

JAPANESE SETTLEMENT.

JAPAN AND CHINA.

PEKING, April 28.

The Japanese Minister has informed China that after the acceptance of the Japanese demands Japan will consider the retrocession of Kiao-Chao, but that Tsing-Tao will be a treaty port with a large Japanese settlement.

STOPPED.

GERMAN ATTACK.

NEAR YPRES.

SIR JOHN FRENCH'S REPORT.

LONDON, April 28.

Sir John French reports that the German attack at Ypres has been definitely stopped.

Sir John French further reports that fighting to the north and north-east of Ypres was continued on Tuesday. Our operations in conjunction with the French definitely stopped the German attack, though there is still a small bridge-head at Steenstraate to deal with.

The situation required the delivery of British and French counter-attacks north of the Ypres salient. The Germans who resisted there used asphyxiating gases and shells, contravening the Hague Convention.

ENEMY'S SEVERE LOSSES

PARIS, April 28.

A communique states: The Germans have suffered severe losses. Over six hundred dead were counted at a single point on the Yser Canal.

GERMANS BOMBARD INFIRMARY

On Sunday the Germans bombarded an infirmary at Poperinghe, which was flying the Red Cross flag. Three nuns were killed, one of them having her head blown off whilst rescuing children. Several inmates were injured.

BERLIN VERSION.

ENGLISH ATTACKS FAIL.

BERLIN, April 28.

A communique states: The English attack on both sides of the Ypres-Pilkem road broke down 200 yards before our front.

Another attack, further east, failed. There were severe English losses.

GERMAN LOSSES.

A DUTCH ESTIMATE.

AMSTERDAM, April 28.

There is a wholesale movement of German troops in Belgium, partly towards the Yser and partly eastwards, presumably for the Carpathians.

The German losses round Ypres are said to be in a ratio of 20 to 1 of the Allies.

PROGRESS OF BATTLE

ALLIES' OFFENSIVE.

CANADIANS RELIEVED.

LONDON, April 29.

A Dunkirk message, dated Wednesday, says: The Canadians, worn out with four days and nights' unceasing struggle, were relieved, and retired covered with glory, but with their ranks sadly thinned.

The whole of the fighting was along a front of five miles. The most critical days were Saturday and Sunday, when the Germans brought up howitzers and heavy artillery to their advanced positions, and covered every highroad with a curtain of fire to prevent reinforcements. The Germans were using new troops lavishly, and many were badly demoralised on facing shellfire for the first time.

There was a change for the better on Monday. The Allies' general offensive and the bombing of junctions prevented the Germans from reinforcing their exhausted troops. The Germans suffered great losses in retiring at Saint Julien.

The British Territorials fought with great gallantry. It was the baptism of fire for many units. When called on Friday afternoon to reinforce the Canadians the Territorials brilliantly assisted in capturing Saint Julien, and moved up the open road along the banks of the river to Haanebeek, though the Germans directed a murderous machine-gun fire from ruined houses.

Unfortunately, the Territorials did not enjoy the full fruits of their gallantry, as Saint Julien was found to be too far advanced, and the line was remodelled nearer Ypres.

The British are now pressing the offensive home. The French are making many prisoners, and capturing machine-guns. They recovered their own guns from the swamp.

The Belgians and French also are attacking the bridge-head from north of Steenstraate, while the British attack on the other side is rendering the German tenure perilous.

Reports from the British front state that three thousand German prisoners were taken in two days following the German check.

The British have successfully attacked Freilinghein, near Armentieres, also Epinette, where infantry, supported by an armoured train and heavy artillery, smashed a way into the German trenches with grenades.

EFFECTS OF GAS.

EXPERT INVESTIGATION.

Dr. John Haldane, who was sent to France to investigate the effects of the poisonous gas used by the Germans, has reported to the War Office that post mortem examinations of the victims revealed that deaths were due to acute bronchitis, caused by the use of irritant gas.

The symptoms indicated either chlorine or bromine gas. Facts were also adduced indicating the use by the Germans of shells containing irritant substances, though in some cases these agents were not of the same brutally barbarous character as the gas used against the Canadians. The effects were not those produced by ordinary combustion explosives.

Captain Bertram, a Canadian, states that he saw 24 men lying dead from gas on a small stretch of road leading from the advanced trenches.

GERMAN APPARATUS.

PARIS, April 29.

The Germans had metallic tubes projecting from the first line of trenches. At a given signal they lighted the tubes, and red flames shot up twelve yards, followed by a thick green-yellowish smoke, with the odour of chloride. The Germans retired to the second line of trenches. They also threw fuses giving off similar smoke.

M. Turpin, the inventor of melinite, suggests pumping liquid ammonia into the poisonous gas clouds, and the supplying of flasks of ammonia to enable the soldiers to inhale. The War Office has ordered a supply of masks.

IN FRANCE.

GERMANS LOSE GROUND.

PARIS, April 28.

A communique states: We gained a kilometre on the Les Eparges-St. Remy front, inflicting very severe losses.

We destroyed a German battery.

AIR RAIDS.

FRENCH ACTIVITY.

It is officially stated that French airmen on April 27 and 28 dropped bombs on the stations at Bollwiller, Chaubley, Arnaville, and Leopoldshohe.

They ignited an ammunition store at Chaubley, and a dirigible shed at Friedrichshafen. They also brought down and destroyed four German aeroplanes.

One French aeroplane was lost.

GERMAN ADMISSIONS.

AMSTERDAM, April 28.

A Berlin message states that an enemy biplane dropped bombs on the arms factory at Oberndorf (Wurtemburg).

The damage, it is stated, was insignificant, but six civilians were killed and seven severely wounded.

An airman, from a westerly direction, dropped six bombs on Friedrichshafen.

The damage was slight. The airman was fired at, but escaped.

Another Berlin telegram says a French aviator dropped bombs on the Mauser arms factory at Stuttgart. The damage was inconsiderable.

SERVIA'S PLIGHT.

APPALLING CONDITIONS.

MENACE TO WORLD'S HEALTH.

WASHINGTON, April 28.

The Rockefeller Commission, reporting on conditions in Servia, asserts that there are 30,000 cases of typhoid, and the whole nation is rapidly becoming enveloped. Three hundred thousand persons are destitute.

Conditions are wholly beyond the Government's control, and are a menace to the health of the entire globe. The country is practically exhausted.

Sixty thousand Austrian prisoners are quartered in various centres.

THE CROWN PRINCE.

A MILITARY FAILURE.

LONDON, April 29.

The "Daily Chronicle's" Luxemburg correspondent asserts that the Germans lost 60,000 men at Sedan on the 1st and 2nd of September, and 40,000 at Longwy, where the Crown Prince suffered a nervous breakdown, and was only rescued by the sacrifice of an enormous number of men.

The Crown Prince's military exploits are a standing joke, since he spent the major portion of his time in riotous dissipation at Luxemburg.

GALLANT DEEDS.

AT NEUVE CHAPELLE.

LONDON, April 28.

The following have been awarded Victoria Crosses for their work during the battle of Neuve Chapelle:—

Sergeant-major Daniels and Corporal Noble, both of the Rifle Brigade, for conspicuous bravery in cutting entanglements, though wounded. Noble has since died.

Private W. Buckingham, of Leicestershire Regiment, for rescuing wounded while exposed to heavy fire.

Private Rivers, of the Nottinghamshire-Derbyshire Regiment, on his own initiative advanced to within a few yards of a large number of the enemy on the flank of his company, and hurled bombs, causing them to retire and thus relieving the situation.

Rifleman Gobar Sing Negi of the Garwhal Rifles accompanied a bayonet party with bombs to the enemy's main trench. He first had to go round each traverse, driving the enemy, and forcing them to surrender. He was killed during the engagement.

Captain John Henry Arden, a New Zealander in the Worcestershires, has been created a Companion of the Distinguished Service Order, for conspicuous gallantry and ability at Neuve Chapelle. When a battalion, on his right, was expelled from the trenches, he formed his company, and, under heavy fire, counter-attacked the German right with great determination, enabling the battalion to reoccupy the trenches.

FRENCH CRUISER.

SUNK BY AUSTRIANS.

HEAVY LOSS OF LIFE.

TORPEDOED AT NIGHT.

PARIS, April 28.

It is officially announced that the French armoured cruiser Leon Gambetta (12,350 tons, completed in 1904, and having a complement of 728 men), was torpedoed in the Adriatic on Monday night by an Austrian submarine.

An early report from Rome stated that the Leon Gambetta was beached to prevent her sinking, but this was incorrect.

It was also stated at first that the Austrians torpedoed the cruiser off Santa Maria de Leuca, on the east side of the Gulf of Taranto, but later information states that the Leon Gambetta was cruising in the Straits of Otranto. The Austrian submarine 5 fired two torpedoes at night time, and the cruiser sank in 10 minutes.

The officers perished at their posts. Italian ships rescued 136 of the crew, and 58 bodies have been recovered. Most of the survivors were injured.

Rear-Admiral Senes went down with his ship.

The Leon Gambetta was travelling at seven knots, going to Malta. A submarine appeared suddenly. The second torpedo exploded, flooding the engine-room and wrecking the dynamos, the ship being then in darkness. The wireless was paralysed, and the vessel was not able to signal for help.

The captain headed for the shore, in the hope of beaching the ship. Two boats were lowered, but capsized, drowning all the occupants.

An Italian patrolling flotilla, cruising near by, rushed up to the rescue, regardless of the possibility of the submarine mistaking them for French in the darkness. They found bluejackets clinging to wreckage, and others to rafts constructed with oars and planks.

Except the watch, the crew were sleeping in their quarters. The survivors picked up were without clothing.

Survivors state that during the attack on the Leon Gambetta a German destroyer protected the submarine, which came from Cattaro. The destroyer also fired at the Leon Gambetta.

FOODSTUFFS.

RE-EXPORT TO GERMANY.

BRITAIN'S INTENTIONS.

LONDON, April 28.

Replying to a question in the House of Commons regarding Scandinavian re-exports, Mr. Neil Primrose said that some neutral countries re-exported foodstuffs and other cargoes to Germany, despite an undertaking to prohibit re-exportation. This showed that the consignees were in collusion with the German authorities. If the steps taken to prevent a recurrence were unsuccessful special measures might be necessary.

Mr. Primrose pointed out that German warships had captured and detained several Swedish ships laden with grain and oil, the facts suggesting that there had been collusion.

THE WILLIAM FRYE.

GERMAN OFFER ACCEPTED.

WASHINGTON, April 28.

The United States has despatched another Note to Germany, agreeing to accept compensation for the sinking of the William Frye on the basis of the German offer, under terms of the Prussian-American Treaties of 1799 and 1828.

The United States reiterates the protest against the destruction of the ship, repeating that the cargo was not contraband.

MILITARY COMMANDS.

LONDON, April 29.

Colonel M. J. Tighe, of the Indian army, has been appointed major-general commanding the forces operating against German East Africa.

Sir Edward Hutton has resigned his divisional command owing to ill-health.

WAR NOTES.

THE POSITION IN THE WEST.

This morning's cablegrams confirm the view that the great German assault upon the Allied line to the north of Ypres has definitely exhausted itself. The tremendous thrust was made on a front of five miles, and the fighting it involved will probably prove, when the facts are available, to have constituted one of the bloodiest battles of the war. It is evident, reading between the lines of even the official despatches, that the position during Saturday and Sunday was extremely critical, and it is possibly to be regretted that a frank statement of just how critical it was has not been made. Owing to the extraordinary methods that have been adopted in regard to the suppression of certain news, and the free passing of much irresponsible and unduly optimistic comment, the people of the Empire have been given a somewhat faulty perspective of the war, and have, as a consequence, been slow to realise the urgent need for every possible effort that can be put forth. A plain, unvarnished tale of what happened in Flanders last week would do much to dissipate that quite erroneous impression that the "great spring offensive" of the Allies is going to accomplish things in magical fashion, and settle the war in short order. Before that offensive is well under weigh we must expect to hear of one or two more big German attempts to smash through our lines, which will probably involve quite as heavy sacrifices as those just demanded of our troops in Flanders, and even when the "great offensive" is undertaken the pushing back of the enemy is going to be a long and costly process. As we have often emphasised, there is absolutely no need for pessimism in the situation; but a too inflated optimism is distinctly harmful, from which ever angle it is viewed. It leads to relaxation of effort, and makes us sensitive to set-backs, and there is just as great a need to guard against it to-day as ever.

THE ARMENTIERES DISTRICT.

Simultaneously with the Allied counter-attack in the Ypres region the British have assumed a vigorous offensive further down the line in the neighbourhood of Armentieres. Already the village of Frelinghien, a little over two miles north-east of Armentieres, and just on the Franco-Belgian border, has fallen into their hands, and this has been followed up by the capture of L'Epinette, a couple of miles due east from Armentieres, on the railway to Lille. In the operations against this latter village the British utilised the railway to the full, bringing up an armoured train, the guns on which evidently worked considerable havoc in the German trenches. These two successes are of more than purely local importance. The advance to Frelinghien, if it can be followed up, will tend to place the Germans before St. Eloi, just south of Ypres, in an uncomfortable salient; for it is to be remembered that our line swings back to St. Eloi from well to the east of Ypres. As for the L'Epinette success, this brings the British to within about 5½ miles of Lille along the only railway leading into that city from the west, and it represents a distinct advance in the plan to attack Lille ultimately from three sides.

FOG OVER THE DARDANELLES.

But scant news is vouchsafed us as to the progress of the Dardanelles Expeditionary Force, and the absence of fuller official reports is to be specially regretted in view of the Turkish communique, which speaks of reverses having been inflicted upon the Allied forces, and the taking of a number of English and Australian prisoners. The Turkish regard for the truth is a curious quantity, and it has never shown itself more curious than in the official communiques that have been issued from the Porte during the present war; but even this comforting reflection does not make up for the lack of news from our own side. However, these matters are in hands that cannot be forced just now, and our public, which has such an intimate interest in the Dardanelles operations, will have to hold its soul in what patience it can summon until the powers that be elect to lift the [illegible] it. All we know at present is [illegible]ions of the Allied troops have been landed at three points on the Gallipoli peninsula—the biggest force at Sedd-el-Bahr, at the extreme south-western end, another at Suvla, on the western extremity, and the third at a point in the Gulf of Saros opposite the town of Gallipoli. A fourth section—composed of French troops—has been landed on the Asiatic shore at Kum Kaleh, and a fifth has been set ashore away up at Enos, near the Bulgarian border. As to what fortunes are befalling these various sections we are not told, beyond an intimation that the Sedd-el-Bahr force have now established themselves on a line stretching from Eski Hassarlik, a few miles east of their landing-place, right across the peninsula to the Aegean shore. They appear to have had some serious fighting, but we are assured that they are "steadily advancing." With that we must be as content as we can.

FRENCH NAVAL DISASTER.

The latest warship to fall a victim to the submarine is the French armoured cruiser Leon Gambetta, which has been torpedoed by an Austrian underwater craft in the Straits of Otranto. The submarine which is credited with this coup is the U5, a small vessel of the improved Holland type, of 235 tons displacement, which was built by the Austrians themselves at Fiume, in 1909. She has a surface speed of 12 knots, and is fitted with two bow torpedo tubes. Vessels of this type are not regarded as ocean-going craft, but they are admirably adapted for work in the Adriatic. The U5 is said to have come from Cattaro, the southern Austrian port, which is about 150 miles north of the Straits of Otranto, the latter being the narrow stretch of water between the heel of the Italian "boot" and the Albanian coast. A German destroyer, which has apparently been bottled up with the Austrian fleet since the outbreak of the war, accompanied the submarine, and they fell in with the Leon Gambetta, when she was steaming in the darkness of Monday night at a speed of seven knots on her way to Malta, which is now being used as a French naval base. Two torpedoes were fired, and the second one dealt the cruiser a mortal wound. One account states that the Leon Gambetta was run aground to prevent her sinking, and it seems clear that the bulk of the complement of 728 were rescued. A feature of the affair was the way a patrolling Italian flotilla rushed to the rescue of those on board the stricken cruiser, regardless of the great risk they ran of being mistaken by the submarine for French ships in the darkness. It is fortunate that the disaster was not accompanied with greater loss of life, and in view of the potentiality for evil in a wandering submarine in the Adriatic it must be admitted that the French might easily have been apprised of the U5's prowlings in a much more damaging fashion. It is not surprising that a submarine should elude the blockading ships, but there is an element of surprise about the report that a destroyer accompanied her. This report may not be confirmed, but if it is the French navy will doubtless take special steps to prevent any enemy ships coming south from Cattaro in future, lest a wandering Austrian destroyer pull off some unpleasant surprises in the Mediterranean. For a destroyer in the Straits of Otranto at night means that the wider sea is open to her.

THE LOST CRUISER.

The Leon Gambetta was 11 years old, but was, nevertheless, a useful unit of the French navy, and her loss is to be deplored, when it is considered that there is at present ample work for every ship in the fleet to do. Her displacement was 12,351 tons, and 28 Niclausse boilers furnished steam to three vertical triple-expansion engines, each driving a propeller, and giving the vessel a speed of a little over 23 knots. Protection was afforded her by a continuous armour belt, rising to a height of 7ft 7in above the waterline amidships, with a maximum thickness of 6½in, and tapering to 4in. Her armament comprised four 7.6-inch quick-firing guns, mounted in turrets forward and aft, and sixteen 6.4-inch quick-firers, of which four were mounted on the main deck in casemates, and 12 in pairs in six turrets on the upper deck. These turrets were so disposed that 10 6.4-inch guns (including two of the main deck guns), could fire ahead or astern. There were five torpedo tubes, of which two were submerged. The vessel cost £1,169,940 to build and arm, and her sisters now with the fleet are the Victor Hugo and the Jules Ferry. It may be mentioned incidentally that the Leon Gambetta started out on her career under unfavourable auspices. When undergoing her trials in 1904 she ran into a fog, and, owing to the faulty adjustment of her compasses, she went aground upon the Black Rocks, off the Goulet of Brest, breaking two of her propellers and otherwise damaging herself. She was thus not ready to complete her trials till several months later.

"MOST URGENT."

BELGIUM'S NEED.

AN APPEAL FROM ENGLAND.

MELBOURNE, Thursday.

The following cable has been received by the Prime Minister from the Secretary of State for the Colonies:—

"With reference to my telegram of March 16 as to the Commission for Relief in Belgium, a national committee for relief in Belgium has now been formed, with the Lord Mayor of London as chairman, and Mr. A. Shirley Benn, M.P., as treasurer. Its object is to appeal in this country for funds to assist the commission's relief work in Belgium.

"The commission, owing to its neutral character, has not thought it right to make this appeal itself, but the need for assistance has now become most urgent.

"I suggest that contributions for relief in Belgium should now be sent to that committee, which will thus become the national channel for such contributions from the British Empire. Relief purchased from the committee's funds will be distributed in Belgium by the neutral commission."

NEARLY £2000.

YESTERDAY'S CONTRIBUTIONS.

OVER £700 GIVEN FOR A SHEEP.

The flow of contributions was well maintained at Challis House yesterday, the two thousand mark being nearly reached. Several very substantial amounts came in from the suburbs, Marrickville sending a second contribution of £150, and Willoughby and Auburn further instalments of £100 each. Rylstone and Drummoyne each made a first remittance of £95 and £50 respectively, and a first donation was also received from Blackheath of £42 9s 4d. Fifty pounds came in as Ryde's second monthly donation, while £40, representing the Ulmarra patriotic sports committee's donation for April, also came to hand. The sum of £68 12s 2d was received from A. Hordern and Sons, Ltd., half having been subscribed by the employees of the firm during the past fortnight, the other moiety being a pound for pound subsidy by the firm.

The net gain to the fund from the sale of flowers on Wednesday last was £42 17s 9d. £27 5s 9d having been obtained by the Potts Point ladies' committee, under the presidency of Mrs. Adrian Knox, and £15 12s by the committee at Grace Bros., who were ably led by Miss Chauncy and Mrs. G. Adams.

At the close of the day a cheque was handed in by Mr. R. M. Pitt, of Messrs. Pitt, Son, and Badgery, for £704 6s 7d, being the proceeds of the sale of the first sheep killed at the new abattoirs, presented to the Premier, and, at his request, sold on behalf of the Belgian Relief Fund. The following were the several purchasers:—M'Leod Bros., £100; J. K. Mackay, £100; R. M. Pitt, £50; Sir Allen Taylor, £50; G. Maiden, £25; F. J. Walker and Co., £25; F. W. Hughes, Ltd., £25; B. Edwards, £5; Wildridge and Sinclair, £5; W. Payne, £5; J. Hayes, £5; J. B. Donkin, £5; Dr. C. Purser, £5; Mrs. R. M. Pitt, £5; A. W. Clifton, £5; H. R. Munro, £5; C. Lance, £2; weight guessing competition, £1 1s 7d; J. Bunce, £1.

The Balmain Bowling Club has decided to give £100 to the fund in 10 monthly instalments, through the local committee.

"BELGIAN DAY."

ORGANISATION TAKING SHAPE.

A letter from a country commercial traveller received by Mr. Hugh Ward yesterday contained a good suggestion. It was that everyone moving among men throughout the State should adopt a new term of greeting. This was merely, "Belgian Day, May 14." The insistence of this, he said, would work wonders. "It will in a few days," he wrote, "become a catch phrase throughout the State. People now adopt useless forms of address. 'How are you?' they say to someone obviously in the pink of condition, or to someone patently very ill. I would also suggest that every correspondence clerk type at the foot of business letters, 'Belgian Day, May 14.' Don't let anyone have a chance of forgetting."

The idea has simplicity to commend it. It also has directness.

That the country is rising to the effort with enthusiasm is more apparent every day. Yesterday Mr. Percy Hunter, joint secretary of the National Belgian Fund, wired to Mr. Ward as follows:—"Kempsey raised £700 yesterday, and is going at it strongly again for 14th. Wauchope and Port Macquarie also pledged to help, and the message is being carried all through the rivers." Kempsey has the right spirit. Consistent giving is going on throughout the State. May 14 is the day, however, for a special additional effort.

The decoration of the country towns is also now well in hand, and all New South Wales will fly the Belgian flag for one day, a unique tribute to the gallant nation to which the world owes so much.

The United Charities' organisation is assisting. Mr. Upjohn, the secretary, is getting into touch with the numerous collectors. The ladies who in the past have worked so energetically for our own people are asked to again undertake a mission of mercy. It will be only a question of being there to take the money on May 14. Employers of ladies willing to assist in this work are to be asked to give them time off. Neither the time nor the work will be begrudged on such an occasion.

This morning, at the Theatre Royal, the theatrical profession of Sydney will meet in connection with their part in "Belgian Day." They will be entertained with a performance of "The Man Who Stayed at Home," after which several public men will deliver short speeches. The Lord Mayor (Alderman Richards), Mr. J. H. Cann (Minister for Works), Mr. George Black (Chief Secretary), Mr. F. Flowers (President of the Legislative Council), and Mr. Arthur Griffith (Minister for Education) are among those who have promised to attend.

LISMORE'S BIG CARNIVAL.

Among the callers at Challis House yesterday was Mr. Denis Mahoney, president of the Kyogle Shire. He expressed regret that it would not be practicable for the local organisation to come altogether in line with the "Belgian Day" movement for the 14th May, seeing that the whole of the northern districts from Queensland down to half-way between the Clarence and Richmond rivers have for some months past been concentrating every effort on the promotion of a big carnival, organised by the Commercial Travellers' Association for Empire Day. This carnival will be held at Lismore, and Mr. Mahoney stated that he and his committee will be disappointed if, as the result of the co-operation of practically every public-spirited person in the districts mentioned, they do not realise £10,000. It has not yet been definitely decided how this money will be applied, but the general feeling is that the need of the Belgians will form a first consideration. To indicate how the matter has been taken up, Mr. Mahoney stated that the takings of every river boat, every cab and motor plying for hire, will be given to swell the funds of the carnival, and that practically without exception every employee of the two rivers (Tweed and Richmond) has signified willingness to give one day's wages.

AUBURN.

The Auburn Company, headed by a band, marched to Lidcombe and back. The company is displaying posters, and in other ways endeavouring to strengthen its ranks.

BURWOOD.

Many members of the Burwood Club are going through their musketry course at Randwick. On Tuesday evening Major Buchanan, O.C., paid a surprise visit, and gave a demonstration on the new 1914 drill. The club has had two short route marches, and on Saturday afternoon will hold another, preceded by the Cadets' Band. An instructional class meets regularly in the School of Arts.

ROSEVILLE.

The Roseville Rifle Club will hold a parade with the 34th Battalion to-morrow. The muster will be in uniform at the Custom-house, Circular Quay, where special trams will be provided to convey members to Undercliffe.

WAVERLEY.

The Waverley Rifle Club has passed the squad period, and last Monday Major Buchanan drew them up in platoon and exercised them in the new formation. Led by the 22nd Waverley Cadet Band and Captain Barracluff, they carried out a route march of eight miles on Wednesday in two hours and 30 minutes, including a fifteen minutes' rest, returning to the parade ground with a swing that won them the highest praise from Major Parsonage. A letter from the National Rifle Association was read on parade, asking for members open to form as a rifle battalion for active service with the next Expeditionary Force. Several names were handed in, and more are expected by next parade. Shooting is in active progress, and some fine scores have been made. On Saturday next, at Long Bay, and all-day musketry parade will be held.

The building will be eight storeys in height, in addition to the basement, and the time of erection is 30 months.

DISTRESS IN SERVIA.

COUNTRY A PREY TO EPIDEMICS.

An appalling story of conditions in Servia was related by Ernest Bicknell and Henry James, jun., of the war relief commission of the Rockefeller Foundation, on their return to London on March 19, after a tour of inspection through that country, says the "San Francisco Chronicle." They said that several diseases were epidemic in Servia.

Typhus, the most deadly of these, already has caused the death of 60 out of 400 native doctors of the country. The foreign Red Cross units have suffered great losses. Two American and one British unit have been compelled to suspend their regular work because of typhus. Nine American nurses and two physicians have contracted the disease.

The commissioners first went to Nish, then proceeded to Belgrade, and left the country by way of Uskub, thus visiting the three most populous towns. During their tour they learned that typhus, typhoid fever, cholera, smallpox, diphtheria, scarlet fever, and recurrent fever are all existing in more or less epidemic forms. The largest number of cases is of recurrent fever.

The Servians assert that typhus was introduced by Austrian prisoners of war, who were permitted to wander over the country and infected the population by spreading vermin, which conveyed the germ of the disease.

IN ACTION.

AUSTRALIAN TROOPS

THE DARDANELLES.

"SPLENDID GALLANTRY."

MESSAGE TO THE GOVERNOR-GENERAL.

His Majesty's Government desire me to offer you their warmest congratulations on the splendid gallantry and magnificent achievement of your contingent in the successful progress of the operations at the Dardanelles.

The above message was received by the Governor-General (Sir Ronald Munro Ferguson) yesterday from the Secretary of State for the Colonies.

The following cablegram was despatched by his Excellency in reply:—

"The Government and people of Australia are deeply grateful to learn that their troops have won distinction in their first encounter with the enemy. We are confident that they will carry the King's colours to further victory."

MR. FISHER'S STATEMENT.

WAITING FOR FURTHER NEWS.

MELBOURNE, Thursday.

In the House of Representatives to-day the Prime Minister (Mr. Fisher) read the messages that had been exchanged between the Secretary of State for the Colonies and the Governor-General. He stated that some days ago the Australian war expeditionary forces were transferred from Egypt to the Dardanelles. They have since landed, and have been in action on the Gallipoli peninsula.

"News reaches us that the action is proceeding satisfactorily," he said.

Mr. Massey Greene (N.S.W.) asked the Prime Minister whether it was possible to indicate which troops had gone forward to the Dardanelles? It would relieve a great deal of anxiety.

Mr. Fisher said he was not in possession of the facts, and up till now the Government had not been released from the request not to give information, even though they had such a commendatory cable. They had no facts that would be of any use to anyone as to what troops were there. They had twice within the last 48 hours asked to be provided with that information, in order to make the whole of it public, but they had not yet received it.

IN THE SENATE.

STATEMENT BY SENATOR PEARCE.

MELBOURNE, Thursday.

The Minister for Defence, Senator Pearce, read a statement in the Senate in terms similar to those of the Prime Minister in the House of Representatives.

Senator Pearce added that until after the operations had commenced it was essential that no publication concerning the movements of the troops should be allowed. This was done at the request of the War Office. It had caused inconvenience to the press, perhaps, also to members of Parliament and to relatives of those who were with the forces. He thought, however, that all would realise that it was done in the interests of the troops themselves. It was essential, when movements of that kind were being carried out, that the strictest secrecy should be maintained. Now that it had been successfully carried out all news held by the press might be published.

Senator Bakhap (Tas.) asked the Minister what arrangements had been made by the department in regard to the publication of casualty lists.

Senator Pearce said that this, of course, was one of the things for which provision had been made by the department. It had been provided that, before any casualty lists were published, news would be conveyed in the case of officers by the Governor-General to the relatives, usually through the clergyman of the district in which the officers' relatives reside. In the case of the men the relatives were informed by the Minister through the clergyman of the denomination to which they may have belonged. Until the department was assured that these messages had been delivered at their destination, or until reasonable time had elapsed for their delivery, no lists would be made public. After the lapse of a suitable amount of time they would be given out.

In order to correct any misunderstanding that might have arisen from the question and its answer, Senator Pearce added that so far the department had not been advised of any casualties except those which had occurred through sickness, and which had already been published.

MESSAGE TO VICTORIA.

MELBOURNE, Thursday.

The Chief Justice, Sir John Madden, as Lieutenant-Governor of the State, has received a message from the Secretary of State for the Colonies, in similar terms to that received by the Governor-General.

NEW ZEALANDERS.

HOLIDAY DECLARED.

WELLINGTON, Thursday.

A patriotic demonstration took place in front of Parliament-buildings. The occasion was the receipt of the following cablegram from the Secretary of State for the Colonies:—His Majesty's Government desire me to offer to you their warmest congratulations on the splendid galantry and magnificent achievement of your contingent in the successful progress of operations in the Dardanelles.

A Government holiday was declared in honour of the occasion.

The Prime Minister, Mr. Massey, in congratulating New Zealand on the work done by the troops, said the expenditure to March 31 on account of the war was £2,151,835, to which the public had contributed £159,137 in cash.

Sir Joseph Ward said he believed that when peace was declared we would insist on the German navy being handed over or destroyed. We would never again allow the existence of a curse which had been hanging over Europe for the past 15 or 20 years.

THE CANADIANS.

AUSTRALIA'S CONGRATULATIONS.

MELBOURNE, Thursday.

The following cable message was yesterday received by the Prime Minister through the Governor-General, from the Governor-General of Canada, in reply to a message of congratulation on the achievements of the Canadians at the front:—

"Please accept grateful thanks for the congratulations of the Australian Commonwealth on the achievements of the Canadian troops at the front. The kindly sentiment of the Australians is very deeply appreciated in this Dominion."

"MINGLED PRIDE AND SORROW."

WELLINGTON (N.Z.), Thursday.

The Prime Minister, Mr. Massey, has received the following cablegram from the Prime Minister of Canada, Sir R. L. Borden:—

"On behalf of the Government and people of Canada, I desire to express my deepest appreciation for the message. Canada is thrilled with mingled pride and sorrow—pride in the valorous dees of her gallant sons, and sorrow for those who have fallen in the fight for liberty and democracy. We earnestly reciprocate your wish that Canadians may yet fight side by side with their New Zealand brothers for the integrity of the Empire and for the preservation of its institutions and liberties. (Signed) Borden."

SPORTSMEN AND THE WAR.

POLO PLAYERS.

ABOUT 40 ENLISTMENTS.

From exhaustive inquiries in all parts of the country districts it is learned that there will be no polo played this season, not even club games. There are two reasons for this—the war and the drought. About 40 polo men have gone, or are going, to the front. The muster may seem small, but it must be remembered that the proportion of polo players compared with the large number of athletes who engage in other sports is very small.

The country clubs are represented in the Australian Forces by the following players:—Bombala: Messrs. G. D. Walcott, R. M. Walcott, A. G. Tooth, and Theodore Wright. Cooma: Messrs. H. Hepburn, A. W. Mayne, R. C. Garnock, and F. D. W. Oatley. Dubbo and district: Messrs. J. A. Ryrie and John Egan. Glen Innes: Lieutenant J. F. White. Muswellbrook: Mr. Max White. Narromine: Mr. Murgha Mack. Narrandera: Mr. D. A. Robertson. Ohio: Mr. F. W. ("Towser") Nivison. Quirindi: Messrs. Jack Simson and Ophir Taylor. Scone: Mr. Jack Davies. West Maitland district: Captain Granville, Lieutenant Basil R. Capper, and Adjutant A. A. White. Wellington: Messrs. Hastie A'Beckett, H. R. Robinson, and Bryan Barton. Warren: Messrs. Eric Kater, Reg. Brown, and Rupert Agnew. Wagga Club and district: Messrs. E. Whitehead (captain), E. H. Wilson (Big Springs) and S. H. Jackson (Pullitop). Sydney Club: Messrs. J. L. Merivale and B. Richards.

In addition to the foregoing the New South Wales Polo Association is represented in the Imperial Forces by Mr. J. W. Bridges, of Kickerbell, Quirindi, who frequently led the Tamarang team. Mr. Bridges went to England, and now holds a subaltern's commission in that crack regiment, the 17th Lancers (Death or Glory Boys).

FOOTBALLERS.

RUGBY UNION ENLISTMENTS.

OVER FOUR HUNDRED.

Every representative Rugby player of the last three years has joined the forces in Great Britain, while 90 per cent. of the club players have also followed suit. In France, South Africa, Canada, and New Zealand similar responses have been made, and we publish hereunder a list of names so far placed on the honor list of the local body, and which already total 408, while something like 700 are expected when the list is completed. It is a fine record, and the body deserves every congratulation for the manner in which it has shown the lead in the cancellation of its interstate and oversea tours, its competitions, and in fact any inducement that is likely to hinder recruiting in any form. Schemes of various sorts have been thought out to assist the military task with the very firm and practical support of all the game's adherents.

The Manly Club's list on the Rugby Union honour roll of members who have enlisted has been increased by three names, A. M'Cubbin, D. M'Cubbin, and W. M'Donald being added to the 33 names already there, making a total of 36 from the club. This is the best record of any team to date, being closely followed by Eastern Suburbs (33), New England (21), and others with 20 odd names.

In addition to Manly's names Randwick Club has added three names to its list, among them being J. Clarken, the well-known representative Australian and New South Wales forward.

The total of first-grade players with the forces is now considerably over 100.

The following list shows the manner in which the game has sent its devotees to the sterner game abroad. Every institution belonging to the union has sent its quota. The president and four other members of the council have gone. The metropolitan committee, referees, and every club (senior or junior) has representatives with the forces. Whole teams and large proportions of other fifteens are on service, and so the record reads throughout the whole union.

Two of the men mentioned in the list below have died—Dr. B. C. A. Pockley (University) and W. Perkins (New England).

As a lead to other sports the record speaks volumes, and the fact that every day registers more names on the list shows that the work is still being proceeded with, and will probably go on until every available man is in the fighting line.

Following is the list:—

The above list totals 300 names from the metropolitan clubs alone. There are a few repetitions, as in the case of Dr. Moran, who occupied a position with the union, the Referees' Association and the Balmain club, but these are rare, and the actual individuals represented in the above are 292.

There are 108 names so far supplied by the country centres, but as there are still 25 to send in their lists, the above is not nearly representative of the union.

With the metropolitan list supplied above, the grand total is 408, but the names yet to be supplied should double this record, and the Rugby Union honour list when completed should exceed 700 names.

BRITISH ASSOCIATION.

NEARLY A HUNDRED.

The following members of the New South Wales Football Association (B.A. Rules), have responded to the call for men for the front. CHURCH TEAM'S FINE RECORD.

Solely on account of big gaps being caused by enlistment, a virile branch, the Presbyterian Fellowship Union, was compelled to disband. The patriotism of the Chalmers Church team perhaps furnishes a record. Last season 21 players were registered, but during the season two returned to England, and one (Fleming) joined Sydney District Club, and of the remainder, the subjoined list shows 17 of them responsive to the call in one or another military capacity. Three lists (Drummoyne, Leichhardt, and Waverley) have yet to come to hand:—

Chalmers Church.—Sergt. G. E. Knox, A.I.E.F.; Sergt. J. Linn, A.I.E.F.; Sergt. D. M. Williamson, A.I.E.F.; Lance-corporal W. Higgins, A.I.E.F.; Signaller W. F. Hughes A.I.E.F.; Signaller J. AMATEUR ATHLETICS.

A SUBSTANTIAL NUMBER.

Members of the amateur athletic clubs have responded freely to the call to arms. In the list below, which numbers over 70, mention is not made of either the Police A.A.C. or Sydney University A.C. It might be mentioned, however, that all members of the police force are eligible to take part in the annual sports, and that the number of police enlisted exceeds 100. We have already published a list of members of the Sydney University, and these naturally include the athletes. The following is the list of members of the remaining clubs compiled to date:—

Botany Harriers: E. Boots, J. Siddons.

Cumberland Harriers: W. Woodward (hon. sec.), S. Stettler, A. Colbert, F. Woodward, W. Muir, F. Johnstone.

Reboul, who was in France when the war broke out, is now serving his country, and has been in action for the past six months.

There are a number of other athletes at the front, of whom the secretaries of their clubs have no particulars.

SWIMMERS.

MANLY CONTRIBUTES 56.

That swimmers are doing their share towards providing the recruits of the various Expeditionary Forces is clearly demonstrated by the list of the Manly Amateur Swimming Club, which has no fewer than 56 members on active service. Following are the names: R. Cowan, F. Donovan, A. H. Darley, W. E. Fuller, M. Farley, J. Gillespie, J. Holland, N. Holmes, L. Hawksford, R. Hedley, C. Kidman, C. Terry, T. Terry, A. Buckley, R. E. SYDNEY CLUB.

The premier club (Sydney) has the following 23 members on service: C. H. Helsham (president), B. I. Swannell, P. Chambers, G. T. Hill, H. Boardman, P. Boardman, S. Wright, R. G. Douglas, W. Rogers.

The two leading clubs therefore have contributed nearly 80 men.

STATE TRAWLERS.

RETAIL FISH SHOP.

The Chief Secretary, who is administering the Fisheries Department, intends to put the trawlor Brolga into commission immediately.

The third trawler, the Gunnandall, left Thursday Island on Tuesday on her way to Sydney.

"By the time the first boat goes out from Sydney," said Mr. Black yesterday, "our arrangements will be complete for the reception of her catch, and about the same time, or shortly afterwards, we shall be opening a central retail shop for the sale of fish. We shall present the better known varieties in their usual form, but some of the strange and unfamiliar kinds, the more peculiar looking, will be prepared for sale in a filleted condition, free of heads and bones, ready for cooking. The names of the fish will be presented to the public on little placards, so that people will know what they are getting."

SOLDIERS AND UNIONISM.

MR. JENSEN HECKLED.

MELBOURNE, Thursday.

In the House of Representatives to-day Mr. Bruce Smith (N.S.W.) asked the Assistant Minister of Defence, Mr. Jensen, if it was a fact that clerks were not given employment in the Defence Department unless they were unionists.

Mr. Jensen replied that instructions had been issued that all persons who desired to get employment in the Defence Department as clerks must be in a union. ("Shame.")

Mr. Groom asked if that part of the Executive minute with regard to other things being equal had been eliminated.

Mr. Jensen: Not at all.

Mr. Bruce Smith: When men are anxious to go to the front is there any particular union they must join?

Mr. Jensen: I am pleased to say that 70 per cent. of the soldiers that have gone to the front are unionists.

Mr. Groom: Is that statement correct, or is the table published by Mr. Knibbs accurate?

Mr. Jensen: I think I am fairly correct. (Laughter.)

Mr. Gregory (W.A.) asked the Prime Minister if a soldier, when he returned after the war, would be refused work unless he joined a union.

The Prime Minister: Will the hon. member give notice of the question? (Ironical cheers.)

IN THE SUBURBS.

At a meeting of the Auburn Committee, held at the Town Hall, the Mayor presiding, it was decided to send £100 (second instalment) to headquarters. Of this amount the Methodist Church and Society contributed £50. Arrangements were made for co-operation in the proposed Belgian Day (May 14). Meanwhile, collections, sales of goods, etc., are to proceed.

At a meeting of the Edgecliff Ward residents of Woollahra, held on Wednesday, under the presidency of the Mayor of Woollahra, a strong local committee and collectors were appointed. The sum of £37/10/ was handed in to the chairman, together with promises of various articles for auction sale on the 14th proximo. Mr. Reg. Sullivan was appointed local secretary, and Mrs. Callaway to supervise the collecting. Miss Blee, amidst great applause, handed in the sum of £25/13/, being the proceeds from the sale of a hand-painted cushion.

£600 FROM KEMPSEY.

KEMPSEY, Thursday.

As a result of a sports meeting, procession, and concert, held by the Caledonian Society, about £600 will be handed over to the fund.

GRAFTON, Thursday.

Fifty-one residents of Central Orara presented a bullock, steer, or heifer each to the Belgian Fund. These were sold by auction, and realised £188.

MOSS VALE, Thursday.

McLeery, Ltd., have presented a sulky, built by the firm, to the Belgian Fund for sale by auction on Empire Day. This is the second sulky given by the firm to patriotic funds.

The drawing for the ruby and diamond ring which Mr. James Shute is raffling for the Belgian Fund will take place in the Lady Mayoress's rooms at 3 o'clock this afternoon.

UNIONISTS HEAVILY FINED.

A CONSPIRACY ACTION.

PERTH, Thursday.

After a hearing extending over seven days, the action in which a party of mining contractors claimed damages against certain unions, union members, and officials and traders of the Youanmi and Sandstone goldfields, for alleged conspiracy, was concluded yesterday before Mr. Justice Burnside and a special jury.

The statement of claim set out that defendants conspired unlawfully and maliciously against plaintiffs, and used coercion to compel them to abandon the pursuit of their trade as miners, and by unlawful and malicious threats of violence caused them to depart from the district where they had been employed.

The jury returned a unanimous verdict for plaintiffs against all defendants, and assessed damages in the following terms:—Verga, £239/6/8; Jones, M'Kenzie, Fistonvich, Zilko, and Pratt, £233/6/8 each—total, £1156.

FINE TYPE OF RECRUIT.

Over 130 recruits passed through the enrolling office yesterday. The men were of a fine type, and in several instances three or four mates presented themselves, asking that as far as possible they might be allowed to enlist in the same corps, and wherever possible their request was granted.

Quite a number of compulsory trainees came up to join, in most cases armed with the written consent of their parents, and many men who had acquired a taste for military life with the Expeditionary Force which went to Rabaul also offered their services. There was a planter from the Solomon Islands and more than one Russian anxious to join the large number of his countrymen now at Liverpool. A contractor was followed by the overseer of a sheep station, a jeweller, and quite a stream of motor mechanics.

One man, his moustache verging on grey, said he would like to see a little more fighting. He was only 44 years of age, and had seven children, none of whom, luckily, was dependent upon him. His qualifications were that he had served six years with the Gordon Highlanders, and for three years had been with the late Lord Roberts throughout his campaign in Afghanistan. "Then I suppose you can shoot," remarked one of the plain clothes police officers, to whom the veteran made his application. "My word I can," he replied. "I've been a marksman for two years as well." The veteran was followed by a youth who also had qualified as a marksman, and had been one of the members of the winning Commonwealth competition team of senior cadets. This lad was a good horseman. A labourer from Fiji came next, and was followed by three men who belonged to different parts of Britain. They asked if they might be allowed to go together. They had come down from the north-west, and were willing to enlist, but as they had been comrades since leaving the old country they did not wish to be separated—even in the trenches.

Two hard, wiry-looking mates came along. They knew the ropes all right, and after filling in their application forms volunteered the information that what had led them to enlist was the fact that Colonel Fiaschi was, so they heard, going in charge of the double-general hospital. "Served under him through South Africa," said one. "Acted with him in the operating-room, and also as his galloper for six months. My mate was there, too, with Major Eames. Now they want men for that sort of work we're here."

The next applicant wore a smart pair of leggings, and had the unmistakable cut about his clothes. "I ought to be a good horseman," he said, in reply to a question, "considering that I've been cross-country steeplechasing almost since I could fling a leg across the pigskin, but I'd rather go to the front." A plantation owner from northern Queensland also said that he had given up his place to join the ranks, and did not particularly care where he went, as long as he could see a bit of the fighting.

THE WAR.

THE ROUTE MARCH.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—May I, on behalf of the soldiers of A Squadron—and of the men of B. and C. if they will allow me—thank the ladies of Enfield who were enthusiastic and appreciative enough to meet our boys and to treat us so royally? We greatly appreciated their action, and can assure them that as Australian soldiers we will do our best to merit their regard, and fight for the cause that elevates them. We are pleased to be associated with such actions, and proud to be soldiers. I am, etc.,

FIRST TROOP.

SHARPSHOOTERS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—In connection with the efforts being made to raise a corps of sharpshooters, I believe it would greatly help the movement if the corps could be armed with the "long" M. L.-E. rifle. Forces at present are being armed with the new "short" service rifle, the stock of which must be greatly taxed, whilst there must be a considerable stock of long rifles on hand. All "crack" shooting is done with the long rifle, and nearly every rifleman could provide his own rifle and aperture sight. A recent illustration in the Sydney "Mail" shows that at least some corps of the Territorials in Belgium are armed with the "long" rifle, and without attempting to run down the new weapon I believe riflemen would have more confidence in the rifle they have shot with for years. I am, etc.,

VOLUNTEER.

THE JEWS IN POLAND.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—In your Thursday's issue a letter appeared by Mrs. Ethel Matters with a plea for the Jews in Poland, who, likewise with the Poles, are in the utmost distress, and are dying daily from cold and starvation. I wish to inform all those who are particularly sympathising with the Polish Jews, that the subscriptions received in this State, as well as in Russia, for the war victims in Poland, are equally distributed amongst the starving population of Poland, irrespective of their religion and racial differences. The subscriptions will be sent through the Russian Embassy in London to the "Central Committee of Help" in Warsaw, which consists of Protestant, Catholic, as well as Jewish Poles.

The antagonism between the Poles, the Russians, and the Jews no longer exists, as the common cause in fighting the enemy of the world—the Teuton—has united all. The Poles and the Jews have answered Russia's call to arms with a magnificent spirit. Forgetting and forgiving the dark days of persecution, they have joined the Russians like one man, and proved to be amongst the bravest. I may add that apart from the 1,000,000 Poles in the Russian army, there are 300,000 Jews.

I am, etc., JANINA CZAYKOWSKA,
Hon. Secretary, Polish Relief Committee.

DENTISTS AT THE FRONT.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—I must congratulate the Defence Department on at last recognising the necessity of having a Dental Corps, and am pleased that Mr. Hawkins has been appointed one of the lieutenants. There is no doubt that the troops sent from here have suffered very considerably, and have been put to much personal expense through the want of dental attention. I understand that only the first battalion of the troopship Afric had a dentist with them. I am, etc., H.E.M.

April 29.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—There has been a good deal of growling in your columns lately about mail matter for the troops not reaching its destination. One reason for this may be that insufficient postage stamps have been put on packets or letters. My own experience in posting socks to Egypt has been somewhat curious. For three successive weeks I have posted one pair of socks—weighing the same, and wrapped in the same way, each week, at the William-street Post-office. Each time I have asked what postage would be required. The first time I was told to put 7d on the packet, and did so; the second time I was told to put 1d. I suggested that there must be some mistake, and the attendant made further inquiries, and said it would be 8d. Last week I took another pair—was first told to put 2d on it, and then this was corrected—at my suggestion—and I was told that the correct postage would be 1s. It is all very well for the authorities to state that "the postage per ounce is so much," but few of us have the necessary weighing machines, and must go to the post-office for information. Definite instructions to all the employees would probably save a lot of parcels from non-delivery, and a lot of hard workers from being disheartened. I am, etc.,

A.M.S.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—In justice to the postal authorities, both in Egypt and New South Wales, I would like to state I have a relation, and I can say, with pride, I have received a letter nearly every mail. I have also received parcels and registered letters, and he has received all my letters. I sent a Christmas card, and no regimental number, and after a little delay he received it all right. I have sent knitted socks, which are badly needed.

I am, etc.,
April 29. JANET GEMELL.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—I have a husband and a son in Egypt. It is nearly five months since they left, and I have written every week regularly since they left. Between the two I have posted to date thirty-nine (39) letters and postcards (to say nothing of other letters from relations, etc.), and I go to the G.P.O. to post them, to be sure of them not going astray. They complain of only receiving three, the last one dated February 3. They should have had eight ahead of it. He is feeling very disappointed over it, and says we have no idea how a letter cheers them up. Can you throw any light on the subject? I am, etc., A. M. SEWELL.

TARIFF PRINCIPLES.

INTERSTATE COMMISSION'S REPORT.

MELBOURNE, Thursday.

The Interstate Commission's report deals at some length with the conflicting interests of different industries.

"Careful discrimination appears necessary," the commission states, "so that suitable tariff assistance under such circumstances should be extended to that industry which promised the greater success as being likely to employ the greater proportion of skilled and other labour. If it be found that tariff assistance to the lesser works to the detriment of the greater industry, then it is to the advantage of the employees generally and of the public that the progress be subjected to a restriction. It may, at times, be found a distinct economic advantage to withdraw tariff encouragement from certain subordinate industries when the effect of such encouragement is proved to be a hindrance rather than an aid to the total of industrial development. This is particularly desirable in the case of certain subordinate industries which depend on imported raw material.

DUTIES ON RAW MATERIALS.

"Satisfactory as the progress of Australian industry has been, it would have been more so in certain industries if the encouragement given by the tariff had not been largely diminished by import duties on the raw materials and the partially-manufactured material indispensable for the purpose of Australian manufacturers, and not produced here or likely to be produced here on a commercial scale. Duty had also been chargeable on indispensable machinery not manufactured and not likely to be manufactured in Australia in the near future. It was fully recognised that where suitable raw material is conveniently available in Australia its use should be encouraged, but it should be a condition of encouragement that such raw material is available in a quantity, that it is of fair average quality, and that it is geographically accessible. No rule appeared to have been observed in this respect in the past. Encouragement for the local production of the raw material should, where practicable, be by means of bounty and not by import duty."

Regarding profits to manufacturers, whilst the commission fully recognised the right of manufacturers to a fair and reasonable profit, "it is difficult," it states, "and indeed, impracticable, to lay down any uniform percentage of profits as a standard. Generally speaking, manufacturers have prospered in recent years. In the period 1908-1913 (five years) the value of land, buildings, plant, and machinery engaged in manufactures increased by £21,543,924—an increase of no less than 40.9 per cent. in five years. Quoting from the official year-books, it is shown that the average of the factories' salaries and wages throughout the Commonwealth in 1908 was £80 19s 9½d per annum, and in 1913 £104 2s 9½d, an increase of 28.59 per cent.

LOW RATE OF WAGES.

These figures, it is stated, suggest that the greater volume of Australian manufacturing industries are those which pay low rates of wages. For 1912 the average wages of males was £118 17s 5d, and of females £45 15s 9d. In 1913 the averages respectively were £123 6s 5d and £47 14s 9d. Figures for the same years are available in all the States excepting Queensland showing the average wages earned as distinct from salaries to managers, clerks, etc. These are:—1912, males £116 1s 5d and females £45 3s 2d. In 1913 the figures were £119 8s 1d and £46 11s 6d. These figures, it is stated, do not appear satisfactory, and are suggestive of the necessity for a wider discrimination, so that those industries employing labour at fair and reasonable rates of remuneration should receive preference when the tariff is under consideration. The average rate of £119 8s 1d paid in 1913 to male workers suggests, it is pointed out, that the proportion of unskilled and poorly-paid labour in the manufacturing industry is much in excess of what might reasonably be expected; and it is considered of importance that there should be a special and gradual development of tariff encouragement towards those industries which provide employment for the greatest amount of skilled labour, resulting in the higher average rate of remuneration to factory employees than the present. The increased efficiency and the greater care now exercised in getting up goods have already met with the success they deserve, but, to some extent, the local prejudice to the disadvantage of Australian-made goods still exists. The complete removal of this prejudice is largely in the hands of the local manufacturer himself.

The matter of complaints of the lessening efficiency of workers is touched upon, and it is stated that it is extremely likely that, accompanying the rapidly increasing development of local industry, there has been a decrease in the average amount of work done per employee. Apart from every other consideration, the very great increase in the demand for labour absorbing all the efficient workers has created a demand for those less efficient. It is added that the commission cannot pronounce definitely upon the various contentions in reference to this subject.

The commission, in the limited time at its disposal, was unable to inquire whether the complaints made by some witnesses regarding interstate freights had any foundation; in fact, under the recent decisions of the High Court, there is no power to apply any remedy for such disabilities of the Australian trader, if they could be shown to exist, and to be due to unreasonable or unjust charges.

ABSOLUTE PROHIBITION.

Witnesses frequently admitted that, in order to get the local market, they sought absolute prohibition of imports, and in many such cases they professed to be willing to enter into a bond not to increase prices except on account of a rise in wages or raw material. They contended that to secure the local market would mean in many cases a reduction of charges and expenses, and would thus tend to reduce prices. Tariff legislation furnishes no example of a duty being conditioned by such guarantees as those suggested. On the other hand, it is stated, to grant prohibitive duties, especially to industries in which only a few large firms operate, without some form of controlling prices would lead to certain combinations, and probably an increase in price to the consumer.

Touching upon export duties, the commission states that several applications will be dealt with in its report. It is, however, pointed out that unless a country possesses a monopoly in a certain article of trade, or unless its output dominates the world's market, an export duty must tend to discourage production.

WORKERS AND WAGES.

It could not be anticipated, that, in the open markets of the world, Australia could successfully compete with the manufactured products of cheap labour, but we need have no anxiety in regard to our export trade in those natural products for which there are increasing world-wide competition. Fortunately Australia offered the possibility of unlimited expansion in agricultural, mining, and pastoral industries for the products of which the world's demand was practically unlimited. Figures were quoted to show that, whilst the yearly increase of persons during the last ten years engaged in primary production was only 1 per cent., in manufacturing industries it was nearly six times the amount per cent., while, so far as females were concerned, primary production had suffered a loss of 60 per cent., and manufacturing industries had gained nearly 100 per cent. The largely increased employment of female labour in manufacturing industries demanded very particular attention, and there was reason for anxiety in the incessant drift of population to the cities.

Reference is made to the mode of stating the ad valorem rates of duty, and the commission can see no useful purpose in disguising the real tariff rates as at present by adding 10 per cent. to the f.o.b. value before duty is assessed.

In conclusion, it is stated that the reports which will follow will refer only to those industries in which applications were made for tariff assistance.

CORRIMAL DISPUTE.

RESUMPTION OF WORK PROBABLE.

Mr. A. C. Willis, general secretary of the Illawarra Colliery Employees' Association, stated yesterday that a meeting of the wages board had been held on Wednesday to deal with the trouble at Corrimal, where the colliery has been idle for seven weeks owing to a dispute over the drawing of the cavil. The chairman (Mr. Hibble) declined to give a definite ruling, but the board made certain recommendations to which both sides agreed, with a view to bringing about a resumption of work.

If no further complications arose, Mr. Willis added, the cavil would be drawn on Friday, and work would be resumed on Tuesday next.

FLOUR FOR BROKEN HILL.

REQUEST OF A.W.U.

BROKEN HILL, Thursday.

The Australian Workers' Union decided to ask the Attorney-General, Mr. Hall, to establish a State bakery in Broken Hill, or send Government flour to some person in Broken Hill other than the Chamber of Commerce.

FEDERAL SESSION.

THE SENATE.

MELBOURNE, Thursday.

The Senate met to-day at 3 p.m.

Senator M'Dougall (N.S.W.) was informed by the Minister for Defence that he had received further information regarding the statements contained in a report of an interview with the ex-Governor of German New Guinea, and especially that portion which stated that Australians fired 60 shells from their 6-inch guns at a position at Toma in which the Germans had not entrenched.

The Minister stated that, as a result of inquiries, he had ascertained that the road between Herbertshohe and Toma was shelled by the Encounter for about an hour, as it was reported to be held by the enemy in force. The result of the shelling was good.

Senator M'Dougall was further informed by the Minister that the cost of launching the Derwent was £610; but no figures were available as to the cost of launching the Warrego at Cockatoo Island.

The Defence Bill passed through its final stage, and was transmitted to the House of Representatives.

The debate on the motion for printing the Ministerial statement was continued by Senators Shannon (S.A.) and O'Loughlin (S.A.).

The Senate adjourned at 6.15 p.m. till to-morrow.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

MELBOURNE, Thursday.

The Speaker took the chair at 2.30 p.m.

After questions, private members' business was dealt with.

Mr. Thomas (N.S.W.) moved, "That the resolution of this House of November 11, 1913, 'That the honourable member for Ballarat be suspended from the service of this House for the remainder of the session, unless he unreservedly retracts the words uttered by him at Ballarat on Sunday, November 9, and reflecting on Mr. Speaker, and apologise to the House,' be expunged from the journals of this House, as being subversive of the right of an honourable member to freely address his constituents."

After several members on both sides of the House had expressed regret at the incident which led up to his expulsion, the leader of the Opposition, Mr. Cook, who had previously opposed the motion, stated, in view of the attitude adopted by Mr. M'Grath, his party would not vote against the motion, which was agreed to on the voices.

The Defence Bill was read a first time.

TWO NEW BILLS.

A bill was read a first time to amend the Judiciary Act. In the principal Act, original jurisdiction in all matters was granted to the High Court. This provision is now to be deleted, and the original jurisdiction is to apply only in all matters arising out of the Constitution. In all matters of admiralty or maritime jurisdiction, and in trials of indictable jurisdiction against the Commonwealth power is given to the Attorney-General to file an indictment for any indictable offence against the laws of the Commonwealth in the High Court, or the Supreme Court of a State without examination or commitment for trial, and upon an indictment being so filed, the court or a justice or a judge thereof may cause a summons to be issued or a warrant to be issued. Another bill which also treats upon the trial of indictable offences was introduced to-day in the House of Representatives, and takes the form of an amendment of the High Court Procedure Act. It lays down that the trial by the High Court of indictable offences shall be by a justice and a jury. The laws of each State relating to juries are to apply in trials of indictable offences in the High Court.

WAR PRECAUTIONS BILL.

The debate was continued in Committee on the War Precautions Bill.

Mr. Hughes said he was quite prepared to accept the amendment preserving the civilian rights in an emergency to all civilians except those who were alien enemies.

Mr. Brennan (Vic.) moved an amendment to make clause 4, subsection 2, read as follows:—"An offence against this Act may be prosecuted either summarily or upon indictment, or if the regulations so provide by court-martial; but an offender shall not be liable to be punished more than once in respect of the same offence, provided no civilian, other than an alien enemy, shall be prosecuted before a court-martial."

Dr. Maloney (Vic.) suggested the inclusion of a clause to read:—

"Notwithstanding the preceding provisions of this section, no person, other than an alien enemy, or person subject to naval discipline act or military law, shall be tried by court-martial for an offence against this act."

This was agreed to.

When clause 8, providing for the suspension of the provision to allow of trials of civilians by civil courts during military emergency was reached, the House divided on the question of the elimination of the clause.

The motion for the elimination of the clause was lost by 35 votes to 14.

The Assistant Minister for Defence (Mr. Jensen) moved an addendum to clause 8 to provide that while a proclamation was in force any sentence passed by court-martial against a person to whom sub-section 6 applied (regarding rights of civilians) should be referred to the Governor-General for confirmation, mitigation, or remission.

Mr. Anstey (Vic.) moved the addition of the words, "That nothing shall be deemed a military emergency which deprives a British subject of the right to trial by jury."

The Attorney-General, Mr. Hughes, pointed out that the effect of Mr. Anstey's motion would be to nullify the effect of the motion.

The House divided on Mr. Anstey's motion, which was defeated by 41 votes to 5.

MR. ANSTEY'S VOW.

Mr. Anstey then stated that he would no longer owe any allegiance to the party with whom he had been associated for so long. The organisations of Bourke could have his resignation at any time.

The clause as amended was passed, and the bill passed the remaining stages.

The House adjourned at 11.10 p.m.

CASUALTIES.

KILLED BY PRISON TRAM.

At the Coroner's inquiry into the cause of the death of Mrs. Mary Boardman, 39, the evidence showed that Mrs. Boardman crossed the tramline on the 1st ult. in front of the prison tram at Fisher-street, Randwick, and not the motor van as previously stated. The tram struck her, knocking her clear of the rails, but the base of the skull was fractured, and she died in Sydney Hospital some days later.

DROWNED AT GRAFTON.

GRAFTON, Thursday.

Henrietta Matthews, 25, housekeeper for Joseph Leonard, was found drowned in the river at South Grafton. Deceased had been missing since Sunday.

FARMER LOSES A HAND.

WAGGA, Thursday.

Thomas Winnel, a well-known farmer at Rockibiboo, was feeding a chaffcutter when his hand got caught in the grips. Before the machine could be stopped it was terribly mutilated. He was brought to Wagga by motor car, and it was found necessary to amputate the hand at the wrist.

AMUSEMENTS.

POLISH RELIEF MATINEE.

At the Little Theatre to-day the curtain will rise at 2 o'clock upon a series of dramatic scenes and musical pieces contributed by Mr. Julius Knight, the Violet Paget Company, and artists from the Adelphi, National, and Her Majesty's Theatre. Others assisting in the good cause of the Polish Relief Fund will be Mr. Tom Dawson, Mr. Claude Leplastrier, Mr. Maurice E. Price, Miss Dorothy Harris, Madame Yakovleva, the Harmony Four, Miss Eva Truman, Miss Millie Gallagher, Miss Sylvia Roberts, M. Eugene Osipoff, Mr. Lawrence Campbell, Mr. Ernest Parkes, Miss Marjory Hughes. The plan is at Paling's.

LITTLE THEATRE—LAST NIGHT OF "CASTE."

This evening the Violet Paget Company will make their farewell appearance in Robertson's comedy "Caste," one of several revivals after a long lapse of years, for which playgoers have been indebted to this combination. The fact that it will now disband will give a keen interest to this farewell performance.

"THE BRICKS" AT HER MAJESTY'S.

"The Bricks" occupied the dress circle of Her Majesty's Theatre last night to the number of 240 members and their friends, including as office-bearers the president (Mr. Frank Walton), the founder (Mr. E. J. Card), and the hon. treasurer (Mr. Neville Montague). The house was crowded for "Cinderella," towards the close of which Messrs. Barry Lupino and J. F. McArdle conducted an auction sale in aid of the Belgian Fund, and the suggestion of Mr. Arthur Wood (in a speech from the dress circle) that the proceeds should be devoted to Mr. Hugh Ward's Belgian Day scheme was adopted. Two gold "bricks" were put up, and were secured by Messrs. Charlesworth and Rainbow for £7 7s and £16 16s, and were put up again, and generously passed on for Belgian Day, and a doll was sold and resold up to sums of £5 and over many times.

DEATH OF A CIRCUS ELEPHANT.

A familiar figure of Wirth Bros.' Ltd.'s circus ring has disappeared, Toby, the oldest and cleverest elephant of the herd, which died yesterday morning, after a two or three days' illness. For years she was the principal performer in the elephant's act, and did tricks denoting intelligence almost human. She was about eighty years of age, and was worth nearly £2000. She had a remarkable memory. On one occasion during a steamer voyage an engineer "loaded" an orange with pepper and gave it to her. On a subsequent voyage the same engineer passed near her, and she grabbed him with her trunk, and only the rigging saved the man from going overboard. She died of a similar complaint to the one which caused her collapse on the bridge at Nowra a year ago. On that occasion she held up the horse traffic for about twelve hours.

SPORTING.

THE TURF.

Everything points to the day's racing, which the Australian Jockey Club gives on May 24, in aid of the Belgian National Fund, being a great success. As already mentioned, members of the betting ring have agreed to each pay a certain amount, which will make about £1000, and Mr. Kerr, a member of that body, has handed Mr. C. W. Cropper a cheque for £100 towards the funds. The Jockey Club do not charge entrance fees for their regular races, at least do not keep the nomination fees; they go to the winner; but on this occasion an entrance fee will be charged and given to the fund. Mr. Fred. Merton has given it out that he intends to nominate all his horses in the various events, among them his stallion Flavinius, who has retired from the turf to the stud, and was champion stallion at the last Royal Show. He proposes to nominate Flavinius for the Hurdle Race. Needless to say, this fine performer never saw a hurdle, nor is there any intention of running him. Mr. Tom Payten, the well-known trainer, has stated his intention of heading a list, for trainers and horse-breeders, with £100. Mr. Payten is both a trainer and a horse-breeder of high standing, and, doubtless, his lead will be followed by both trainers and breeders, and the fund thus considerably augmented.

Evidence of an early winter was beyond dispute at Randwick yesterday morning, for, until the sun got well in possession, the air was particularly keen, and reminded more of June than April. Many of the trainers intend to abandon early morning work next week, and will begin the after-breakfast season; in fact, P. Nolan is already doing so. Mr. Law opened the magpie grass track for the use of trainers, and the first to take possession of it was that consistent early bird, W. Leadbeater, who sent Miss Mooltan over nine furlongs, a distance she covered in 2m 7s. Lady Avington occupied 1m 24½s for six furlongs, and Simon 'Frisco was not fully extended over seven furlongs run in 1m 40½s. Blue Knight and Algous slipped over half a mile in 53s, while Hopoast went a furlong farther in 1m 5s. Hobble Skirt galloped seven furlongs in 1m 36½s, and Spadix accumulated enough speed to cover five furlongs in 1m 8s, a performance that was beaten by two seconds by Sir John Barleycorn. Taunter traversed a circle at a steady gait, as did Necktie. Miss Bob ran five furlongs in 1m 7s easing up, and Golden Hop managed a similar distance in even time. Speedfast, Toa Tere, Hopfield, Herringbone, Valerie O, Crosska, Lady Denman, Sir Vive, Morna, Sweet Malt, and Giru were indulged in easy tasks. The tan was patronised by trainers to a greater extent than is usual. Tartanus and Sir Alwynton bowled over six furlongs in 1m 22s, which was half a second better than the time recorded against Silver Steel's effort for the same amount of ground. Fordell ran the half-mile course in 52s, while Tiffany and Best Scot went a couple of furlongs further in 1m 20s. Matouree, Red Denis, and Chid, traversed a mile in 1m 51s, while Ravello, Eugeny, Cagou, Tartan's Double, Moving Picture, and Warrabinga, went at half-pace. The morning's work was brought to a close by N.C. and Rue Kan jumping a few hurdles in better style than has been usual with them.

The committee of the Australian Jockey Club has adopted the sub-committee's report in connection with the Belgian National Fund race meeting to be held at Randwick on May 24. Their chief recommendations were that the club should provide the whole of the stakes (£1200), and pay all expenses, handing the gross receipts to the fund; that members should forego the use of their badges and also their ladies' badges to gain admission to the saddling paddock, using them only for admission to the various stands; and that all permanent officials be requested to give their services in connection with the meeting free.

Having been offered special inducements, wires our Melbourne correspondent, Mr. P. A. Connolly has decided to start Jolly Beggar as well as Tom Castro in the Adelaide Cup.

HIGH PRICED COLT.

REPORTED FOR AUSTRALIA.

LONDON, April 28.

At the Newmarket sales, Sir W. Cooper purchased the colt Redfern for 5300 guineas. It is reported the colt will go to Australia.

Owing to the death of Lord Cadogan, the nomination of his brilliant St. Denis colt, Redfern, became void under the English rules of racing, and the colt was sent to auction at Newmarket yesterday, and was purchased on behalf of Sir William Cooper, presumably to be raced here in the many valuable w.f.a. races at Randwick and Flemington. Redfern, who is by St. Denis (son of St. Simon) from a mare by Ladas from Red Wing, by Gallinule, was one of the four best two-year-olds last season in England. He was on a par with Friar Marcus, Roseland, and Let Fly. He won £4002 in stakes. Sir William Cooper was not the only Australian in the field for Redfern. Mr. S. Allen, the owner of Dartmouth stud, cabled his agent to go to 4000 guineas for the colt.

APPLE SHIPMENT.

PRICES IN ENGLAND.

LONDON, April 28.

The shipment of apples to Liverpool at Anchises generally was satisfactory. Some were rather ripe and some spotted. Prices were:—Tasmanians, 12/ a case; and Victorians, 7/6 to 12/3. Californians were plentiful, but mostly in poor condition, and fetched from 2/ to 7/6.

DAMAGES FROM RAILWAY COMMISSIONERS.

WEST MAITLAND, Thursday.

At the Circuit Court to-day, before Mr. Justice Pring and a jury, an action was brought in connection with the Exeter train disaster, of some 18 months ago.

Thomas Clarke, administrator of the estate of Elizabeth Clarke, his wife, sued the Chief Commissioner for Railways and Tramways for £2000 compensation on behalf of himself and children for the loss sustained in her death. The children named were Matilda Jane Parson, Wm. James Clarke, Lily May Kelly, Mona Muriel Clarke, and Vera Hyacinth Irene Clarke. Messrs. H. R. Curlewis and W. Tighe (instructed by Messrs. Sparke and Millard) appeared for plaintiff; and Mr. J. P. Pickburn (instructed by Mr. Moors, Solicitor for Railways' office, Sydney), for defendant.

In opening the case, Mr. Curlewis explained that the action arose out of the Exeter disaster, in which Mrs. Clarke was killed, it was alleged, as the result of the negligence of the servants of defendant. Plaintiff sued to recover compensation for loss sustained in her death.

Defendant did not deny negligence, but said that £250 was sufficient compensation for the loss sustained. Plaintiff said it was not, and it therefore remained for the jury to consider what was sufficient compensation.

The jury found for £250, assessing £150 compensation for plaintiff, and £50 each for Mona Muriel Clarke and Vera Hyacinth Irene Clarke respectively. The verdict was nominally for defendant.

THE LOAN EXPENDITURE.

How the loan expenditure is growing is shown in the portion of the statistical register of the State just issued, dealing with public finance. The amount per head for the year ended June 30, 1914, was £4/19/7, compared with £1/1/10 in 1905, and £4/3/2 for the calendar year 1891. The amount spent each year from loans since 1905, and the total amount at the close of each financial year, is given thus:—

NEW VICTORIAN LOAN.

MELBOURNE, Thursday.

The Premier announced that a 4½ per cent. loan of £2,250,000, floated in London on Monday, was issued at par. It had a currency of 10 years, with the option of redemption by the Government after five years. Estimating expenses at £2 2s per cent., it would return £98 per cent. on the full 10 years' currency. The cost of the money would be £4 15s 2d per cent. per annum. No accrued interest would be allowed in the early stages, as was usual, and thereby the State would save about £25,000. There were 3120 applicants offering a total of £3,830,000. The net price, £98, was the best realised since the war. Canada and Queensland, for similar issues, had obtained only £97 1s 4d and £97 respectively. The statement attributed to the Agent-General that the money would be spent in England was probably a misapprehension. The money would not leave England, but would be used for payment of obligations, and thus would release money in Victoria for other purposes.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

The annual general meeting of Wunderlich, Ltd., was held yesterday, when Mr. E. Wunderlich presided. The report and balance-sheet were adopted, and dividends of 5 per cent. for the half-year on the ordinary shares, and 7 per cent. on the preference shares, were declared.

The Bank of New Zealand intimates that a branch of the bank has been opened at Apia, Samoa.

At the wool sales yesterday prices for good free merinos were in most cases satisfactory.

Offerings comprised 9472 bales, and sales, including private transactions, numbered 7652.

LONDON FINANCIAL CABLES.

STAMP DUTY PROBLEMS.

SALE OF BUSINESS.

"B.T." writes:—

Sir,—Could you inform me through your Monetary Column—(1) In selling a small business (£250), must the receipt be sent to the stamp office for an impressed stamp, or will the ordinary adhesive stamp be legal; (2) what value stamp will have to be put on?

A 2d adhesive stamp only is required.

COMMERCIAL.

THE MARKETS.

A fair business was done in distributing lines of groceries yesterday, but parcel lines were difficult to obtain because the houses wanted all they held for themselves. Matches were still a problem. It was expected that a small shipment from Melbourne would come by Saturday's steamer, and that this would relieve the situation somewhat. Safeties were rather quiet. Retailers of a speculative disposition, who had been doing most of the heavy buying of safety matches, are now carrying as many as their finances will allow them, and have left none available for those who prefer a steady trade and take the market as it comes. The wholesale houses are fearing a shortage of condensed milk. They cannot obtain nearly sufficient for their orders, and they have to take not the brands wanted, but the brands available. The five and ten case rate has been discontinued, and prices are now on the one-case rate, from 25/ to 27/ per case of four dozen. There has been very free business done in dried fruits, especially in currants, speculators laying in stocks in anticipation of a shortage. It is estimated that only about 50 per cent. of the requirements will be available, and that the balance will be imported. The situation, however, will be clearer in July. Sultanas are rather short in low-grade descriptions, but it is believed that if buyers will take the high-grade qualities there will be sufficient to go round. The English cost of Morton's castor oil has advanced. Moir's pastes have advanced 1/9 per gross, the rise being due to higher cost of production and to freights. Cables advised of a further addition of 3/6 per ton in the f.o.b. price of Gostling's whiting. Most houses asked £6 for ton lots, and 6/3 to 6/6 for smaller quantities.

In Eastern goods, peppers maintained their price. The Singapore markets again firmed. Since October the landed cost of white pepper has increased by 2d per lb, and of black pepper by 1d per lb. Desiccated cocoanut sold at /10 per lb; tapioca and rice were without alteration; blue boiling peas advanced a further /2, being quoted at 10/3 in sacks; bird seed was /6 down at 7/. Whole cinnamon was firmer at 1/11, but ground cinnamon was without alteration at 1/7; macaroni, vermicilli, and spaghetti were unchanged at /4¼ per lb.

The rapid increase in the price of spelter—an advance of £5 to £65 was noted yesterday—was no doubt responsible for the heavy orders received for galvanised iron. It was recognised that with an increase of £10 in the price of spelter in less than a week, rates must again advance. All wires were firmly held. It was impossible to buy No. 8 black wire in parcels at £13; a little was sold at £13/5/. For distributing lots from £13/10/ to £13/15/ was paid. No. 6 galvanised was worth £15/10/; No. 8, £16; and No. 10, £17/10/ per ton. Some houses are holding on because they believe that it will be some months before further shipments arrive. Wire nails continued irregular, varying from list to 7½ per cent. off list.

There was a good demand for woolpacks for forward delivery, and a large business was done in July shipment at 5/2 net to rails. May shipment was quoted at 5/3 net, and spot stocks at 5/4 net. Branbags were unchanged at 5/2 net, and cornsacks at from 6/6 to 6/7 net.

JUTE CONTRACT.

The Sydney Chamber of Commerce has received further representations relative to a new form of contract which has been forwarded by the Jute Fabrics Shippers' Association of Calcutta. In order to discuss the matter fully a meeting of traders interested in jute will be held at the chamber's premises on Monday next.

The amount of wool manifested to arrive at Darling Harbour yesterday was 1215 bales.

RAILWAY MARKET.

UNEXPECTED BUOYANCY.

The market at the Sydney Goods Shed yesterday displayed an unexpected buoyancy. Both buyers and auctioneers, no doubt, expected a heavy fall in the prices of produce, because of the decision of the Necessary Commodities Commission to fix the prices of all hay and chaff. Despite this decision, however, buyers speculated in best grades freely, wheaten chaff making up to 10/2 per cwt, whilst oaten came within 2d of the 10/ mark. The largest operators in this respect were evidently owners of mixing plants, who mix the choice samples of chaff with straw chaff, and sell as medium to good chaff. A total of 51 trucks of forage were in position.

Wheaten chaff sold from 8/ to 10/2, the latter being obtained for a consignment from Vaughan, of Kelso, and oaten brought from 6/2 to 9/10. Lucerne chaff was worth 7/6, whilst lucerne hay realised from 7/9 to 8/6. Oaten hay found purchasers at figures ranging from 9/4 to 10/ per cwt.

Transactions were recorded in potatoes, at prices varying from 4/3 to 5/2, whilst a parcel of onions cleared at 7/ per cwt.

Consignments placed in position for sale:—Hay, straw chaff, 51; grain, 4; potatoes, pumpkins, and onions, 3.

The unassociated brokers, who alone held sales, report: "The catalogues included a large quantity of faulty wools, and for these the demand was irregular, short burry lambs' wool being particularly neglected. The prices obtained for good free merinos, both greasy and scoured, were in most cases satisfactory. Good demand was in evidence for the small quantity of crossbred wool offered."

The Co-operative Wool and Produce Company, Ltd., offered to a full attendance of buyers a catalogue comprising 6132 bales, of which a large proportion consisted of faulty wools held over from the earlier part of the season, when they were more or less unsaleable. HOMEBUSH STOCK MARKET.

SHEEP.

PRIME FIRM—OTHERS WEAKER.

A very fair supply of sheep was in view for yesterday's sales, upwards of 38,106, including lambs, being listed from 157 consignors, and about 37,060 head were finally penned. Most of the sheep had arrived by the opening of the sales. The consignments included one draft of 1000, seven ranging from 600 to 800, and the balance mainly in lots of 100 to 200 head. The weather was fine and cool. The sheep comprised all descriptions, and mainly carried half to three-quarter wool skins, with a sprinkling of woolly. Although merinos preponderated, there was a very fair showing of crossbreds. The merinos, while comprising a large proportion of medium to useful trade quality wethers and ewes, with odd pens of poor and inferior, included a rather better representation of good to prime than on Monday last. Extra prime, however, were scarce. Consignments from the tablelands were more numerous than usual. The crossbreds, as usual, were of better general average quality than the merinos. There was a very fair showing of good to prime, with occasional pens of extra prime, carrying good wool skins, fairly free of burr. Medium and light sorts were only moderately in evidence.

There was a full attendance of buyers, including exporters, the Sydney Meat Preserving Company, Ltd., the usual Glebe Island, suburban, and country trade. The market opened to brisk competition for good to prime quality at the best of last Monday's rulings, and proceeded so during the morning, but medium and plain descriptions were in dull request, with values 6d to 9d per head weaker. This tone with very little variation prevailed throughout.

Included in the principal sales of merinos was a draft of wethers from C. G. Harding (Bunarba) to 25/5, from Midkin station (Moree) to 25/3, R. Dowling (Gunning) to 25/2, A. Phillips (Mullengudgery) to 24/, W. Reynolds and Son (Lake Bathurst) 22/, and J. A. Brown (Garah) to 21/. The merino ewe portion of the draft from G. S. Connors (Nevertire) to 22/11, and G. Hain (Cooma) to 22/3. Among the crossbreds was a line of 161 ewes from G. S. Connors (Nevertire) to 28/9, avg. 27/3; R. Capel (Bugilbone), 220 to 26/11, avg. 23/4; and C. Capel (Bugilbone), 101 to 25/5, avg. 22/5. A line of hoggets from W. Atkins (Nevertire), to 25/9, J. L. Brown (Gular) to 26/10, F. Rixon (Duri) to 23/10. A line of wethers from exors. S. Austin (Trangie) to 28/9, J. Townsend (Coonamble) to 26/7, of ewes from D. M'Intyre (Eumungerie) to 26/10, and a few from G. Bower (Armidale) at 33/.

Quotations: Prime half to three-quarter wool merino w 23/6 to 25/, extra prime 26/ to 27/6; good half to three-quarter merino w and h 17/ to 20/; medium half to three-quarter merino w and h 12/ to 13/6, inferior 9/ to 10/6; prime half to three-quarter wool merino e 18/ to 20/, extra prime 21/ to 23/; good half to three-quarter wool merino e 14/ to 16/; medium half to three-quarter wool merino e 10/ to 12/, inferior 5/6 to 8/; prime woolly crossbred w and h 23/6 to 25/; extra prime woolly crossbred w and h 27/ to 28/6, a few to 30/6; good woolly crossbred w and h 17/6 to 20/; medium woolly crossbred w and h 12/6 to 14/; prime woolly crossbred e 21/ to 23/; extra prime woolly crossbred e 25/ to 28/6, a few to 30/; good woolly crossbred e 17/ to 19/; medium woolly crossbred e 12/ to 15/.

LAMBS.

STRONG FOR GOOD TO PRIME.

A moderate supply of lambs was penned, the bulk being crossbreds, with a fair proportion of merinos. The pennings mainly comprised woolly lambs and suckers, with a small proportion of short wool lambs. All descriptions were forwarded, from a sprinkling of very medium to occasional pens of extra prime, carrying good skins, free of seed and burr. There was a very fair representation of prime, with useful trade quality chiefly in evidence. Buyers included exporters and one or two speculators. The demand for good to prime was strong, at very firm rates; but very medium sorts were not in such good request. A line of woolly crossbreds, from Foxlow, Limited, Bungendore, sold to 22/11, a few from A. Phillips, Mullengudgery, at 24/7; a line from W. H. Hunt, Perthville, to 21/5; trustees late J. S. Vickery, Tamworth, to 22/6; J. Smith, Blayney, to 21/6; G. Worboys, Millthorpe, to 20/8; R. Heaton, Breadalbane, to 23/7; and F. Rixon, to 21/.

Quotations: Prime woolly lambs and suckers, 17/ to 19/, extra prime, 20/ to 23/; a few to 24/7; good suckers and woolly lambs, 13/ to 14/6; medium suckers and woolly, 6/6 to 10/; prime short-woolled lambs, 15/6 to 17/; extra prime, 18/6 to 20/; good short wool lambs, 11/6 to 13/6; medium, 8/6 to 10/; young and light, 6/6 to 7/6.

CATTLE.

GOOD FIRM DEMAND.

All the cattle had not arrived by the opening of the sales—2871 head being listed from 129 consignors, and 2861 head were finally yarded. The consignments came mainly from the northern, north-western, and Hunter River districts, with a moderate showing from the west and south. There were two drafts of 100, but the bulk were in small lots. The yardings comprised all descriptions and included occasional yards of prime heavy and prime medium weight bullocks, with a fair proportion of good to prime handy weight bullocks and steers. There was also a sprinkling of good light steers. The cows and heifers included a sprinkling of prime, and odd yards of extra prime, but medium and plain descriptions, with rough and inferior sorts, considerably preponderated. There was also a sprinkling of calves, yearlings, bulls, and nondescript sorts.

There was a full attendance of buyers, and, as the supply of the better qualities seemed well within the demand, the market opened to brisk bidding at firm values for such descriptions, but plain sorts in places were not in such keen request. Generally, however, the demand was active, without quotable change.

Included in the principal sales was a line of 8 bullocks from B. Proctor (Neworra) to £17/15/, avg £17, and of 6 cows and heifers to £13/12/, avg £12/2/. A draft of 29 bullocks from A. A. W. Nivison (Paterson) to £16/10/, avg £15/16/11, of 31 bullocks from C. A. and T. M. Hooke (Gloucester) to £15, avg £12/13/8, of 100 bullocks from H. E. A. and V. Finlayson to £12/1/, avg £11/1/6, and 24 cows to £11, avg £9/8/10.

Quotations: Odd extra prime heavy bullocks to £21/5/; yards of extra prime medium-weight bullocks and steers, £16 to £17/10/; yards of prime handy-weight bullocks and steers, £13 to £14/10/; yards of prime light bullocks and steers, £11 to £12; yards of good bullocks and steers, £9 to £10; yards of good light steers, £7/10/ to £8/10/; yards of medium and light steers, £5/10/ to £6/10/; yards of inferior lower; yards of prime cows and heifers, £9/10/ to £10/10/; yards of extra prime cows and heifers, £11/10/ to £12; odd beasts to £13/12/; yards of good cows and heifers, £7/10/ to £8/10/; yards of medium cows and heifers, £5/10/ to £6/10/; yards of inferior, £4/10/ to £5/10/. MINING.

DISTURBED MARKET.

EFFECT OF THE WAR.

It is undeniable that the cloud of depression which settled down on the market on the opening day of the week showed no signs yesterday of lifting, and telegrams stated that a similar state of affairs ruled the stock exchanges of Adelaide and Melbourne. As to interstate business, that is practically non-existent.

In view of the strength of the metal values, and the fact that the ore prospects of the mines, whether silver-lead-zinc, copper, or tin, have not diminished as the result of the past month's development work, the general opinion prevailed that the unsettled state of the market is due to a feeling that the war position is not too cheering. There is no doubt as to the ultimate success of the Allies, but speculators appear to be growing impatient at what is considered the absence of any signs of an early termination of the great struggle.

The above remarks apply chiefly to buyers, and largely account for the restricted amount of business transacted. They are simply marking time. As to scrip-holders, it may be conceded to them that they have shown no signs of funk. They have not written prices on panic lines. One would scarcely care to do so on a bull metal market. Therefore, the few transactions booked yesterday were only fractionally easier, so that whilst the proceeding were not too cheering to sellers, there was nothing in the tone of the market to cause them to feel downhearted.

MINING NOTES.

In the fortnight ended April 24, the plant of the Tewkesbury Proprietary, Araluen, recovered 193oz of gold, and that of the Victorian Araluen Company 25oz during the same fortnight.

The manager of the Black Range West Gold Mining Company advises as follows:—"No. 2 level: Extended for fortnight 10ft 9in. Reef in face 1ft 9in; value unchanged. No. 3 level: Extended for fortnight 35ft. No change in face."

During the week ended April 24, 11 tons of ore were raised from Potter's silver mine, near Condobolin, whilst 15 tons were despatched to the smelters.

MOUNT LYELL—ROSEBERY MINES.

QUEENSTOWN, Thursday.

The various levels of the North Lyell mine are maintaining good productive values, while the outputs of ore from this mine, and of pyrites from Mount Lyell, are keeping at about 10,000 and 17,000 tons per month. Three furnaces at Queenstown are in regular operation. The new slag elevator plant installation is about ready.

The sampling of the Rosebery mines is progressing by the Lyell Company's officials, but investigation will take some time.

MOUNT BISCHOFF TIN MINE.

WARATAH, Thursday.

Much interest is being taken in prospecting the Mount Bischoff mine, at North Valley. Further prospecting shafts on the flats towards the Valley dam disclosed some very fair wash. In the first shaft, counting from the old battery, the wash was found to be 12ft in depth, and the results from eight samples returned 8, 10, 11, 14, 12, 14, 15, and 18 lb to the yard. Two chains further north a shaft was sunk, and wash here had a depth of 10ft. Six samples gave the following returns:—6, 8, 10, 20, 25, 18, and 20 lb per cubic yard.

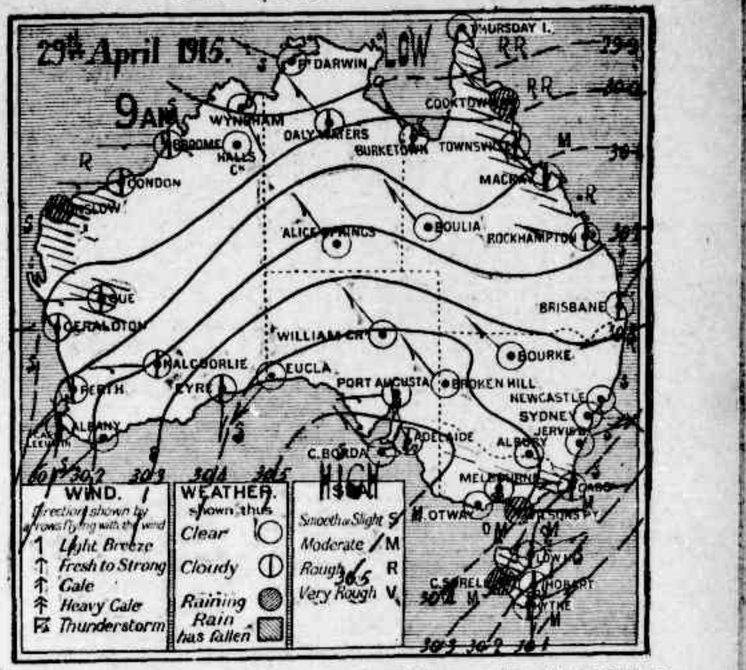
AUSTRALIAN WEATHER.

THE "HERALD" MAP.



During the 24 hours ended at 9 a.m. yesterday the high pressure has gained slightly in barometric values. The central isobar, which reads 30.5 inches, is still situated to the south of Adelaide, but taking the high pressure as a whole, it has advanced further to the NE.

The energetic combined tropical and Antarctic disturbance, which was operating on Wednesday over New Zealand, and causing strong NW gales over the North Island, has now practically filled up, and has moved to the SE. The monsoonal dips are still in evidence over Queensland, and a good deal of cloud prevails in the northern and central districts.

Conditions for the present favour fine weather generally, with many frosts and some fogs.

Ocean Forecasts.—South-easterly winds on the central and North Queensland coast, freshening northerly round the south-west coast of Western Australia.

MOTOR OILS.

COMMISSION'S PRICES.

CONFERENCE WITH TRADE.

The Necessary Commodities' Control Commission (Mr. Justice Edmunds, president), has drafted its proposed recommendations in regard to the wholesale and retail selling prices of kerosene oil and petroleum motor spirits, and has addressed a letter to the trade, asking the representatives of all branches to confer with the commissioners on Monday morning, at 10.30, in order that they may have the benefit of their experience. It is to be distinctly understood, the commissioners state, that the decision of the commission will not be reviewed at the conference, but simply the methods of its application.

The recommendations as to the price of the several grades of oil which the Commission proposes to make to the Attorney-General are as follow:—

Oil companies' prices (on rail or boat Sydney): Kerosene, 7/5 per case of eight gallons; benzine, 13/10 per case of eight gallons; heavy benzine, 12/10 per case of eight gallons; motor spirit, 14/6 per case of eight gallons; and benzoline, 16/6 per case of eight gallons. In the metropolitan area, i.e., the area including all the places for which carriage is provided in the proclamation, the above prices, plus the cost of carriage (if any) that has hitherto been charged, will obtain. Outside the metropolitan area the above prices, plus the actual amounts of carriage paid, will be charged.

The wholesale distributors' prices for kerosene are:—On rail or boat, Sydney, 8/0½ per case of eight gallons; within the metropolitan area the above price, plus the usual cartage charge (if any). In other places in New South Wales, 8/0½, plus the actual carriage paid.

The retail prices for kerosene are 4d per quart, and 4/9 per tin of four gallons, within the metropolitan area; and outside the metropolitan area, 4/9 per tin, plus the amount equivalent to the actual carriage paid.

The retail prices in Sydney are:—Benzine, at the rate of 15/2 per case of eight gallons; heavy benzine, at the rate of 14/2 per case of eight gallons; motor spirit, at the rate of 15/10 per case of eight gallons; benzoline, at the rate of 17/10 per case of eight gallons.

In the country, Sydney prices will be paid, plus the actual freight paid.

CITY AND SUBURBAN TRADE.

A schedule has been drawn up, giving the prices for kerosene in less than load lots on March 12, on a basis of 8/ per case ex store. The highest price to be asked is 9/3 per case at Woollahra, and the lowest 8/5 per case in the city.

FOOD PRICES.

PERMANENT CONTROL WANTED.

A debate took place last night at the Labour Council meeting on the question of the scope and effectiveness of the Necessary Commodities' Control Commission. Mr. J. F. O'Reilly (Hairdressers' Union) moved:—"That the Government be requested to amend the Necessary Commodities Control Act of 1914, by deleting the word 'necessary,' and enlarging the powers of the commission; (2) that the words 'during the currency of the war' be deleted; (3) that the Commission be made a permanent body; and (4), that powers be conferred on the Commission to enforce its decisions." The mover said legislation to control the prices of commodities generally was badly needed. It was absurd to declare that beers and spirits were necessary commodities, and to refuse a similar declaration with regard to wearing materials, housing accommodation, medicine, and many other goods.

Mr. Bennetts (Cigar-makers) said that the proclamations already issued by the Commission, fixing prices, were not being generally observed. A commission would be of no use without the enforcement of its determinations.

Mr. Connell (Ironmoulders) said the present Commission was a necessary evil owing to the war. When things became normal again, competition could be depended upon to keep the prices of commodities within a normal limit. The workers would do better to secure the referendum proposals, which would give them all the power they required.

The motion was carried, and a deputation appointed to convey it to the Government.

QUEENSLAND ELECTIONS.

BRISBANE, Thursday.

Nominations closed yesterday with various returning officers in the State for candidates for the forthcoming elections.

An analysis of the nominations made shows that seven members have been elected unopposed. They are Messrs. J. G. Appel, Liberal (Albert); W. Hamilton (Gregory); H. F. Hardacre (Leichhardt); E. M. Land (Balonne); John May (Flinders); H. Coyne (Warrego); and J. Payne (Mitchell). These are all socialist candidates.

CRUELTY TO STOCK.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—A letter dated April 27, 1915, was received by me this morning, the following is a copy:—

Dear Sir,—I am taking the liberty of writing to you re the cruelty to poor starving stock on the railways.

I trucked six horses for my son-in-law on March 29, to go from Hay to Marulan. They should have reached their destination that night or early next day; but it was late on Wednesday when they arrived at Marulan, three days and nights without water. One horse had its leg broken and had to be shot, and the others had eaten the manes and tails off each other with hunger.

The railways are crying out about scarcity of trucks, and when we order them we have to wait two or three weeks before we can get them, then the poor starving animals are kept in them for days, instead of their being run through and made use of again.

The Railway Department will not give one a pass to go with stock unless one has three trucks of sheep or horses or cattle.

One truck of horses (if they are any good) is worth more than three trucks of sheep, and if it is not convenient to the Railway Department to take trucks on, I think that the owner or man in charge should have a pass to enable him to feed and water his stock en route, it would not matter then if they were days on the journey.

Apart from getting one's stock crippled, the owner has to pay 15s or £1 per head to have the dead ones removed.

If some of the men at the head of the railways were shut up in a truck without food and water for three days and nights it would do them good, and make them have more consideration for the poor starving dumb animals.

Hoping your society will take this matter up,

I remain, yours faithfully, ———.

There is also another complaint as follows:—

An instance of the time occupied on the railway in the transit of live stock is furnished by the experience of Mr. G. W. Barnett, of Wallaby, Booligal, who loaded four trucks of horses at Marulan at 8 o'clock on Monday morning, 12th inst. These reached Hay at 6 o'clock on Thursday evening, 15th inst. The following is the time-table:—

Left Marulan at 9 a.m. Monday, waited one hour at Goulburn, one hour at Breadalbane, and five hours at Cootamundra; arrived at Junee at 1 a.m. on Tuesday; left Junee 8.30 a.m. Tuesday, just before the mail train for Hay; waited one hour at Ganmain (where the mail train passed), and arrived at Narrandera at 12.30, a few minutes after the mail for Hay. They stayed at Narrandera from 12.30 on Tuesday (midday) until 9 o'clock on Thursday morning, and reached Whitton at 11 noon; left 1 p.m., and reached Hay at 5 o'clock, having been four days making the journey.

These two complaints, following on the published press reports of the cruelty at Lockhart, are matters that demand thorough investigation.

A deputation organised by our society waited on the Chief Commissioner for Railways in May last year, asking that concessions should be granted which would enable every consignor to accompany his consignment of stock to a distant station; it was contended that no stock should be sent long distances unless the owner, or some person representing the owner, was in charge.

The matter was considered, and a letter was subsequently received by me from the Chief Commissioner, regretting that he could not authorise any further reduction of what he regarded as liberal concessions.

These are the liberal concessions:—"When two or three different senders are forwarding, in the aggregate, three trucks of live stock on the same day from one station to one destination, to the same or different consignees, and desire a drover to accompany and look after the three truck loads, a pass may be issued under the same conditions as if the trucks were being forwarded from one consignor to one consignee."

Our society was not satisfied, and with a view to minimising cruelty, this particular subject was again referred to when another deputation waited on the Attorney-General on July 7 last.

Nothing was done in this regard, nor is it likely to be done, until the public rise with one accord and insist on an alteration of the methods under which stock are treated. No stock should be allowed to travel on our railways unless some responsible person is in charge of them. If stock are delayed through unforeseen circumstances, and there is a person in charge, that person can in various ways alleviate the sufferings of the poor dumb creatures.

The railway authorities take no responsibility. If the statements herein quoted are really true, then this is now the time for the public to take action, and insist upon an alteration of the Railway Department's methods and regulations, also an amendment of the law.

I have referred the matter of the cruelty to horses at Lockhart to the Inspector-General of Police. I am, etc.,

HEAN'S ESSENCE PROVED EXCELLENT

"My experience with Hean's Essence has been quite satisfactory. The big bottle of cough mixture it made proved excellent for both myself and the children. I never wish to be without it."—Mrs. R. L. Martin, Mungindi, N.S.W.
For all the usual coughs, colds, and sore throats in both children and grown-ups, no better remedy can be found than the mixture so easily made in your own home from Hean's Essence. Not only Mrs. Martin, but many thousands of other mothers make their own cough remedy by adding sweetening and water to Hean's Essence.
In cases of asthma, bronchitis, whooping cough, croup, tickling sore throats, quinsy, phlegmy and old-standing coughs, it gives practically instant relief. Sip each dose slowly or gargle your throat as required. As it does not contain any narcotic or poisonous drugs, it may be taken freely without fear of harmful results. A bottle of Hean's Essence makes a pint of cough, cold, and sore throat remedy, keeps perfectly, and saves 10/ for your pocket.
Hean's Essence sold by chemists and stores, or post free on receipt of price 2/, from G. W. Hean, Chemist, 178 Castlereagh-street, Sydney. Be sure you get H-E-A-N-'S, and read the circular. (18)

PAINLESS!

The treatment of Teeth is something which cannot be put off. It is something which becomes more extensive and expensive each day it is postponed. Most people put it off because they fear pain. If you are one of these, note carefully:—

I FILL TEETH PAINLESSLY.

The most sensitive and tender tooth can be drilled and filled by my special method quite painlessly. I have an apparatus—the only one in Sydney—which enables me to do this work. I guarantee in writing all Fillings and Plate Work against fair wear and tear for 5 years.

MY SPECIAL METHOD OF EXTRACTION means immunity from pain. I extract the most difficult tooth—even if abscessed—without causing the least pain. I am prepared to forfeit £5 to you should you experience the least hurt. If you have a weak heart you will suffer no inconvenience from my method. I have extracted all the teeth for one old lady over 80, and she suffered neither pain nor ill-effects. I often have patients of 3 years of age.

Let me examine your Teeth. A careful examination and estimate of cost will entail no expense, and no obligation to have the work done.

OPEN TILL 6 P.M. DAILY (Saturdays included), UNTIL 9 P.M. FRIDAYS.
